Bribe Offer Sworn

OTTAWA (CP)—Pierre Lamontagne, 29-year-old Montreal lawyer, swore Tuesday he was subjected to two months of pressure, including a $20,000 bribe, by federal ministerial aides, a Liberal MP and others to agree to the granting of bail in a narcotics case.

The case is that of Lucien Rivard of Montreal, wanted in the United States on a narcotics smuggling charge which states Rivard is linked with a Mafia-controlled international dope ring.

IN PRISON

Rivard was arrested in Montreal June 18, and still is in Boreaux Jail there pending decision on an extradition application by the United States.

Mr. Lamontagne, wan and hollow-eyed, testified he had been told Rivard was a contributor to the Liberal party and his (Rivard's) help might soon be needed in a federal election.

He spent 2½ hours on the witness stand before a judicial inquiry headed by Chief Justice Frederic Doherty of the Quebec Superior Court. The federal cabinet ordered the inquiry into allegations of bribery and coercion against ministerial aides and the handling of these allegations by Justice Minister Favreau.

OFFERED $20,000

Mr. Lamontagne, who is acting for the U.S. government in trying to have Rivard extradited to the U.S., said he was offered a $20,000 bribe by his "close friend," Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay.

He said the bribe offer was made on the evening of July 14 in the Commons office of Mr. Tremblay but that the minister scheduled to testify later wasn't present.

He identified Denis as the

Competition Fears Stymied B.C. Bank

By IAN STREET

Fear of competition from a Vancouver-based bank prompted the senate to reject B.C.'s bank application, Premier Bennett said here Tuesday.

He said the real reason behind the defeat of the bank bill by the senate committee had little if anything to do with government participation.

"It appears they are anxious to keep financial control in Canada in the hands of the eastern establishment," the premier said.

NET OBJECTIONS

"(The senate) is opposed to a large bank with headquarters in Vancouver."

Mr. Bennett told a luncheon audience B.C. has met "every single objection" raised by senators during the banking committee hearings.

"We have agreed to drop our original 25 per cent participation to 10 per cent or less; we have agreed not to invest in the bank at all until the Bank Act is revised early next year," he said.

WILL FIGHT

Mr. Bennett said his government does not expect to get approval from Ottawa easily and would fight for the bank as it had done successfully for the Peace and Columbia power projects.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner flew east for Monday's senate committee hearing to make a fruitless last-minute compromise proposal.

WINTER RIDES GALE

By BOB PETHICK

Greater Victoria's first storm this winter caught rush-hour traffic in an icy grip Tuesday, causing one serious accident and traffic tie-ups all over the area.

A light fall of snow—three-tenths of an inch—made roads icy and treacherous, even more dangerous than if there had been a heavier snowfall. (See picture Page 17.)

Elsewhere in the Vancouver Island area temperatures plunged as low as eight degrees, at Tofino, but the only report of heavy snow followed a near-blizzard which dumped five inches or more on Salt Spring and other Gulf Islands.

FERRIES STOPPED

High winds all day slowed Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen and Nanaimo-Vancouver ferries and stopped many Gulf Island ferry runs and flights out of Nanaimo. Patricia Bay flights were not affected.

One report said few meals were served on Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen ferries after dishes broke on an early crossing.

Thermometers fell to 10 degrees in Victoria and 12 in Nanaimo, 14 in the Albernis and 15 at Duncan. Only light snow fell and strong winds were lacking in the last three areas, plus Ladysmith and the Comox Valley.

ICY ROADS

Roads were described as "extremely icy" everywhere. In Greater Victoria, Mrs. Irene Evans of 3715 Maddison and her son Robert were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with minor injuries when Mrs. Evans' car went out of control and dropped down a 20-foot embankment on the Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillikum. The car was heavily damaged.

The accident occurred where new paving goes to the roadside, leaving practically no shoulder.

POLICE BUSY

Traffic pileup reports started flooding police department switchboards from 5 p.m. on, as busy intersections became icy and cars stood still with their wheels spinning on the change of the lights.

Wind gusting up to 42 miles an hour hit the city. The official temperature at Gonzales at 8 p.m. had dropped to 16 degrees.

Weatherman William Mackie predicted a high of 32 degrees today with skies mainly clear, apart from the occasional snow shower.

CHAINS ON

At 6 p.m. the fire departments in the area elected to put on chains.

Also at 6 p.m. cars were six deep on the Patricia Bay Highway at Cemetery Hill. At 6:45 p.m. there was a jam-up of trucks on Royal Oak Avenue and the Patricia Bay Highway.

The mess was finally sorted out and Sarnich police reported the highway clear but treacherous at 8 p.m.

BOTTLENECK

A typical bottleneck was the three-way traffic light at Hillside and Shelbourne where only one or two cars were able to cross at the change of a light.

One motorist said cars were backed up on Shelbourne from Hillside to Haultain.

City, municipal and provincial work crews turned out in force in an effort to salt down well-travelled roads and were to work well into the night.

But the high winds blew away salt and sand in some places almost as soon as it was spread.

Good advice for today by a veteran traffic officer was, "Wherever possible avoid hills."

Four chimney fires, two in the city, one in Saanich and one in View Royal, were extinguished by Greater Victoria fire departments.

Germans Give Tshombe Loan

BONIN (Reuters)—Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe Tuesday signed an agreement for a 10,000,000 mark ($2,500,000) loan from the West German government.

Six-Day Snow, More On Way

By Canadian Press

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—More snow is forecast for this northern city still struggling with the effects of a six-day snowfall last week which left 22 inches on the ground.

The weather was clear and cold Tuesday but the city was still spending record amounts on snow removal.

Old timers said there has been nothing like the present weather since about 1912. Houses have collapsed under the weight of snow.

Elsewhere in the north, temperatures stood at 22 below in the Smithers-Houston region, and 28 below in Prince George as cold air covered the entire Prairies. Snow, close to the Yukon border, had 67 below weather.

Forecasters said coastal areas will likely have more snow after about 24 hours, but the interior should be snow-free for a day or two.

Late Sitzings Scheduled

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate will sit afternoons and evenings today and Thursday in an effort to complete its debate on the red maple leaf flag design.

Senator John Connolly, government leader in the upper house, said he hopes, however, that the debate can be completed by 10 o'clock tonight. (See stories Page 31.)

Canadian Held In Paris Arrests

One of Worst Blizzards Mauls, Buries Prairies

By Canadian Press

One of the worst blizzards in history loosened its grip slightly on Alberta Tuesday night but pounded Saskatchewan with gale-like winds, plummeting temperatures and swirling snow.

At least one person died in the vicious blizzard that combined near-record low temperatures and roaring north winds Monday night and Tuesday in Alberta. Schools closed, travel was virtually abandoned and people were warned to stay indoors.

Police Tuesday found Clem Trimming, 80, dead in a shack in the Red Deer area. His small wood-burning stove had gone out and the temperature in the building was the same as outside—30 below.

HIGH WINDS

Brunt of the storm moved into Saskatchewan Tuesday afternoon where light snow combined with high winds reduced visibility to near zero from Medicine Hat to Moose Jaw and Regina.

At Swift Current, temperatures dropped to near 30 below zero and winds hit peaks of 65 miles an hour.

Manitoba was also expected to get the storm with weather officials predicting lows of near 30 below and high winds.

Most of southwestern Saskatchewan was without electricity for two hours Tuesday night when electrical wires were blown together, causing a short circuit. Temperatures were 28 below zero and winds reached 63 miles an hour.

Meanwhile, strong winds continued to swirl eddies of snow around Alberta late Tuesday—"later than we expected," said weather officials.

In Edmonton, postal officials called a halt to home mail delivery at noon, milkmen were hours behind on their routes, cab companies were swamped with calls and towing companies couldn't meet the demand.

In Calgary, a hospital official warned residents not to attempt to walk more than four blocks. Some milkmen were still on their routes at midnight and others couldn't complete their routes.

The Pension

Costs Will Rise One Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian prices and labor costs could be expected to rise by about one per cent with the launching of the Canada Pension Plan and its Quebec counterpart, says a government economic report.

The report, last major piece of documentation on the proposal, was outlined to the parliamentary pensions committee Tuesday by R. B. Bryce, deputy finance minister. It goes much deeper than the government white paper published last summer.

These are the major conclusions of the study:

Overall economic effects of the pension plan on the relationship between the business, consumer and government sectors of the economy "are on a scale which is modest."

per cent," but it "should not distort significantly the structure of costs or prices or seriously impair the capability of businesses to generate new funds for replacement or expansion."

Employers, required to contribute to the plan, would see their labor costs go up by "something in the order of one per cent" but "this should not seriously impair the ability of Canadian business to compete with producers outside of Canada."

Fourth Version

Some weeks ago, Parliament gave second reading to Bill C136, the fourth version of the Canada Pension Plan. Now, it's before a 36-man parliamentary committee composed of 24 MPs and 12 Senators.

Although further revisions may emanate from these hearings, the feeling is that the government has just about run out of concessions and will hold the line pretty close to the status quo.

To ensure portability, the federal government has had to come to terms with the provincial governments.

Complex Plan Will Hit Market, Business

By STEPHEN VITUNSKI

First of a Series

The Canada Pension Plan has been described as the most complex piece of legislation brought before Parliament since Confederation.

It not only will affect every citizen of this country individually, but on a combined basis as well.

Politically it involves governments at both the provincial and federal level. It will have a marked effect on private pension plans and employer-employee arrangements for payments. It will affect securities markets and personal savings.

Spectre of Disunity Raised at NATO By Nuclear Issue

PARIS (CP)—The spectre of disunity loomed before the NATO ministerial conference Tuesday as the major powers clashed over the issue of whether a NATO nuclear force is possible without dissemination of nuclear weapons.

And while Canada pleaded to keep the nuclear bargaining inside the NATO framework, five of the NATO members interested in developing a nuclear force held a brief meeting outside the conference to consider machinery and methods for advancing discussion of the various nuclear ideas.

NOT INVITED

Both Canada and France said they were not invited and would not attend if the invitation was made.

While the NATO foreign ministers talked all day of how East-West tensions are easing and how opportunities may be grasped to improve cordiality with the Soviet Union, there was inner tension over the nuclear issue.

OUTLINE PLAN

Britain outlined some of its own Atlantic nuclear force ideas, which, Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker said, would give each country which participated equality in nuclear planning of the force.

But French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville argued that both the U.S. and British approaches were illusory.

CRITICIZED

De Gaulle, echoing President de Gaulle's opposition to both plans, said there can be in fact no NATO nuclear force without dissemination of weapons, a step that no one in the alliance wants to take.

West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder indirectly criticized this French approach, saying that those who rejected the approaches of Britain and the U.S. should come up with concrete counter-proposals of their own, rather than vague plans that might someday materialize.

MEET AGAIN
The two will meet again today at Rusk's request.

It was understood de Gaulle, unmoved by the hectic diplomatic agitation at the current NATO meeting here, now would press for further progress in the building of an independent or "European" Europe.

The French president was reported especially interested in a proposal by Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki at the United Nations General Assembly Monday.

First African Backs West

Solid front of African charges at UN Assembly of Western intervention in recent Congo rescue was broken Tuesday by Nigerian foreign minister Jaja Wachuku. He defended U.S.-Belgian-British action as justified because it was undertaken at invitation of legal Congo government to save lives of foreign nationals. He was first African to back West in Congo. Salary Boost Pledged To Provincial Workers

By IAN STREET

Salary increases for some 18,000 B.C. government employees early next year were announced Tuesday by Premier Bennett.

The premier didn't disclose the size of the increases, but said the 1965 budget expected to be brought down about Feb. 5 would contain something for everyone.

The government employees referred to do not include those in B.C. Ferry Authority, B.C.

Hydro or the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

Mr. Bennett announced the good news at a luncheon given by the government for 29 Vancouver Island civil servants with 25 years service. Each was presented with a framed certificate.

Some of the benefits will be passed on to government employees throughout the province, the premier said.

"NOT AS LARGE"
"It might not be as large as everybody would like," Mr. Bennett said. "But anyone who works for the civil service for money alone works for nothing."

The premier said the government recognizes that civil servants cannot lag too far behind private sectors of the economy in the matter of salaries.

It was the third successive long-service luncheon at which Premier Bennett had announced salary increases for all government employees.

Those with 25 years service are:
Robert S. Law, Lester B. Johnston, Edwin S. L. Jackson, Miss Mary Doreen King, William Moore, and Miss Virginia Colliard Ross.

Gerald F. M. Aitken, Dr. Clifford B. Conway, Dr. J. F. K. English, Roy H. Okell, Miss Clara Evelyn Wilson, and Frederick Rock.

Mrs. Marjorie Irene Besley, William V. Hicks, Richard H. Spilsbury, John R. Long, Miss Lillian Margaret Pitkethley, Miss Gladys Margaret Perry, John A. Ingram, and William J. D. Hoskyn.

Miss Evelyn Rhodes, Derek W. White, Miss Phyllis Davis, Dr. Stuart S. Holland, R. J. McInnes, H. J. Hartnell, H. R. Bridger, Harold Hughes, Albert D. Stevens, and Miss Beale Willena Snider.

Where the Onus Lies

ITS PURVIEW NARROWED by cabinet order so that it could not consider the whole profitable field of B.C. Hydro operations but only the money-losing transit segment, the Public Utilities Commission has approved a 50 per cent increase in bus fares, to make them the highest in Canada. The next question is, where do the Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver communities go from here?

Their only hope at the moment, and a dim one judging by the course of events so far, is that the government will take action of some kind to alleviate the impact of this drastic advance in the price of public transportation, which though not all the power authority asked for is more than many bus-riders can or will bear.

The logical expectation is that the higher fares if imposed at the beginning of the new year as intended will mean less patronage, less patronage will mean reduced service, and cuts in service will further diminish the numbers of users: a dwindling spiral with threatening consequences for those solely dependent upon the buses, and for the taxpayers of the metropolitan areas in a variety of ways.

For this situation, Premier Bennett hitherto has denied governmental responsibility. In his view it is strictly B.C. Hydro's business, seemingly, that the crown corporation wants only the cream of its operations regardless of the fact that this would leave the cities, its most profitable power markets, in a position of growing difficulty.

Now the PUC deliberations are over, though, the premier appears agreeable to meeting municipal representatives and hearing such proposals as they may put forward. Even so, he gives no hopeful hints of a change in policy.

It is difficult to believe, however, that a political leader as astute as Premier Bennett does not understand that say what he will, he cannot rid his government of the onus for the decision. Nor, to lesser extent, the much-too-distant members of his party representing metropolitan ridings.

Why?

THE DECISION of the Senate banking and finance committee to kill the bill seeking a charter for the Bank of British Columbia was not unexpected, but it will certainly arouse resentment in this province.

Ever since the principle of a government-sponsored bank for British Columbia was approved by a large majority of the legislature early this year, the Senate has cast a critical eye on the project, and some members of the banking and finance committee during its hearings have raised specific objections.

Each of these objections has been considered and then met by the B.C. government.

The Senate originally did not think the B.C. government should own 25 per cent of the outstanding shares in the new bank.

The B.C. government quickly informed the Senate committee it would be happy to limit its shareholding in the bank to 10 per cent.

The Senate then pointed out that when the revised Bank Act is passed next year it possibly might contain a clause barring any provincial participation in the chartered banking field.

The B.C. government this week met this objection, when Premier Bennett gave an undertaking to the Senate that the Bank of British Columbia, if given its charter, would undertake not to sell one single share until the new Bank Act was passed by the Commons and made into law.

Mr. R. W. Bonner, attorney-general, and Mr. Bennett's chief lieutenant in the financial field, was at this week's meeting of the committee when the undertaking was given, and he has reported that no further objection was made by any senator before the vote condemning the bill was taken.

The Senate banking and finance committee in failing to raise any further specific objections to the B.C. bank must thus stand suspect of not having an unbiased mind in its voting.

Why, if the objections were removed, was the bill killed?

Was pressure forthcoming from the existing banking establishment, or was the mass of federal government political opinion against it? Mr. Bennett claims that the senators changed the goalposts as the argument proceeded, showing that their real objections were not those which they espoused in public.

Mr. Bennett will not be drawn, but it is abundantly clear that he will not give up the fight. What he did about the Peace and the Columbia is too fresh in the memory to suggest that he has dropped his battle-axe.

The economic growth of B.C.—far outpacing that of other parts of Canada—makes it very desirable that Vancouver should be an important money market, and the provincial government is not satisfied that anything but a powerful, B.C.-owned bank can provide the basics of such a situation.

There are many who believe that the application for a charter by the Laurentide Bank was no more than a red herring to divert Premier Bennett from his path, and there must be some doubt if Laurentide with its international financial interests would give B.C. a bank it could truly call its own.

Maverick?

BECAUSE Mr. Ralph Cowan, Liberal member for York-Humber, supported the retention of the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag many of his Grit colleagues in the House are calling him a maverick.

By dictionary definition "maverick" means "an unbranded animal, esp. a motherless calf, formerly customarily claimed by the first one branding it." By political definition, however, "maverick" means one who rebels against or will not follow the party line.

Mr. Cowan therefore is labelled "maverick" by his own party because he is the only Liberal who publicly favored the old Red Ensign. Actually, of course, Mr. Cowan was not rebelling against his party's line because Prime Minister Pearson himself declared that the flag issue would be subject to a free vote in the House.

But apparently Mr. Cowan is the only Liberal who believed the prime minister when he said this.

If there are such things as mavericks in the House over the flag selection, surely they were those Liberals who continued to ignore the prime minister's declaration as well as their own personal choice and the desire of their own constituencies.

Take the Victoria member, Mr. David Groos, for instance. He openly avowed himself to be in favor of the Red Ensign, had overwhelming proof that his constituents supported its retention, yet he admitted he would vote for its destruction.

By these tokens alone Mr. Groos would appear far more qualified for the title of "maverick" than Mr. Cowan.

"Of course, I'm not a learner-driver—I've stopped the bus in time haven't I?"

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax.

By TOM TAYLOR

NEAT, well-illustrated volume titled "The Westminster War Diary," has come to my desk. It will warm the hearts and minds of all those who served in the last war with this unit.

This is the story of the Westminster Regiment, associated with the New Westminster and Fraser Valley areas. It was changed before going overseas from a machine gun unit to a motor battalion of an armored division.

No one, says the author, knew at the outset exactly what a motor battalion was or did, but even a brief perusal of the diary shows how well the Westminster carried out their new role. Among other distinctions they produced a VC winner in the person of Major J. K. Mahoney.

I was intrigued though by the regiment's collective feeling when VE Day arrived, as expressed by a private when shaving. Looking into his mirror, he exclaimed: "Boy, am I glad to see you."

A soldier always thinks the bullet isn't made that carries his number, but it's comforting to have such confirmation of this belief.

A reader who obviously took heed of recent remarks in the subject of Christmas cards sends me one, saying: "This is one greeting you won't need to answer."

She appends her name but no address, you see.

I suppose that possibly I might ferret her out by poring over the local directory, but that would be unimportant and I must not spoil the gesture.

My thanks however are floating in her direction even if the mailman does not carry them. And the reciprocation is not grudged. May she be cheered as well as I.

Here's a note that combines both the military menace and that belonging peculiarly to military. It should interest any former Sherwood Forester who happens now to be a Victorian, not in mention my feminine readers.

The regimental secretary of this well-known English unit has explained why its old regimental color is two shades of green.

"While the regiment was in India the color had to be replaced, and the commanding officer's wife rather gallantly gave her silk petticoat."

Noblesse oblige. This color was used from about 1839 until 1912, and is to be preserved in a new regimental museum opened this month.

It must have been a real good petticoat, don't you think? I doubt they make 'em like that nowadays. Or that ladies wear them either!

I don't know much about post offices except where to buy stamps and the chute down which to drop one's mail, but a news item apropos these establishments makes me wonder.

I never knew before that the mail was sorted out in wash-rooms, yet what else might one deduce from the following CP dispatch:

"Postmaster-General Nicholson, under pressure from employees associations, is closing down the controversial wash-room observation galleries that were installed in post offices to catch mail thieves."

Talk about invasion of privacy!

Nor did I ever suspect that's where my mail was processed. I don't suppose it is actually, but Big Brother in the wash-rooms!

Washington Calling

China's Wooing of Pakistan

By MARQUIS CHILDS from Karachi

THIS does not entirely convince American diplomats who see a stream of Chinese fan-ling out through Karachi into Asia and Africa.

Certainly the attention of the great power with more than 700,000,000 people is flattering Premier Chou En-lai came here last February. He told top government officials that if the United States attacked North Viet Nam with conventional weapons China would respond in kind as happened in Korea.

If nuclear weapons were used, the Soviet Union would inevitably be drawn in, Chou said. Then the United States and Russia would be destroyed while China, although taking heavy losses, would survive. That was long before Khrushchev was removed and the chief here is Moscow's recent warning in Viet Nam indicates the two Communist powers are beginning to heal the breach that was so wide in the closing months of the Khrushchev era.

This may partly be put down to wishful thinking. One source of deep resentment here is that Pakistan's policy of alignment with the United States beginning in 1954 cost her the enmity of Moscow and the title of "stooge" in some African countries. But now nonaligned India is getting large-scale American military aid, or so it is believed here, which frightens and enrages the Pakistanis.

Submarines to be turned over to India at some future date, according to current newspaper reports, are a real for this nation as though they were moving under the waters of the Bay of Bengal manned by Indian crews menacing East Pakistan.

The tragic fact of Pakistan's division into two separate states, East and West, with 1,000 miles of Indian territory between them, feeds the fear and suspicion. It is as though the New England states were separated from Texas and the southwest by another nation. It has not been possible to negotiate with India a system of land communication between East and West Pakistan across the 1,000 miles.

All this suits the game Pakistan is playing. In much the same fashion Chou En-lai courted Nehru and the Indians even as Tibet was being occupied and sealed away from the rest of the world and India outflanked on the north. The Pakistanis are a brave people and a proud people and they may feel the dragon that today smokes so benignly on a nation suffering from a sense of wrong and injustice and the fear of a rival four or five times as large on the same continent.

Fairer Representation

Our Readers' Views

WITH the results of many of the recent elections, it shows more than ever that the proportional representation method of voting should be used. At least the winner would be declared by a more even distribution.

I am hoping that those in charge will give this serious consideration. It is most unfair, that out of some 7,000 voters as was the case in one of our neighboring municipalities, the winner should reign having only 122 majority.

Death Sentence

The proposal to abolish capital punishment is just another example of man's super colossal conceit that he is wiser than Almighty God. "Who created the world and all that therein is," including a perfect code of laws for government. Here are a few of His decrees:

The sixth commandment makes capital punishment mandatory—not as an act of revenge, but a measure to satisfy justice and safeguard society. "He that smiteth a man so that he dies shall surely be put to death." Ex. 21:12. "Whosoever killeth any person, the murderer shall be put to death by the mouth of witnesses. Moreover, ye shall take no satisfaction for the life of a murderer." Numbers 35:30-34.

Once convicted, there is no excuse for appeals or delayed execution, as the custom is. These delays are very costly and invariably lead to a state of protests couched in terms of maudlin sympathy for the criminal, but scarcely anything of comfort or compensation for the victim's dependents.

Why? "So ye shall not pollute the land... for blood defileth the land, and the land cannot be cleansed of the blood that is shed, but by the blood that is shed, but by the blood that is shed, but by the blood that is shed, but by the blood that is shed." Num. 35:33. "Thine eye shall not pity, but life shall go for life." Deut. 19:21-23.

Basic Training

Do parents of pre-schoolers who watch morning TV programs, realize the brain-washing that goes on?

Sandwiched between "What is the matter with Mary Jane?" and "Pussy Cat, Pussy Cat," are some rather rubbishy commercials. Over 1,000 Fighting Positions, head your marines to attack every beachhead, you and your Dad can build your own authentic battle scenes.

As the mother of three pre-schoolers I felt compelled to bring the matter up in case some parents had not noticed this "basic-training" offered to our toddlers.

Chronic Care

The recent action of the minister of health, Mr. Martin, in rejecting the application of the Nonalio Hospital Board to demolish the old hospital is to be welcomed.

This fully corresponds to the views expressed in my telegram to the minister, and the submission to him by the Old Age Pensioners' Association.

His action backs up the contention of the old age pensioners, myself, and thousands of other citizens, that the board's intended action was ill advised.

The meeting of the Hospital Society that is being planned for January 7, to further consider the fate of the old hospital, is a step in the right direction, but I believe that the taxpayers in the whole Regional Hospital Improvement District

This is unfair.

Perhaps a Canada Council grant would help the professor in developing a pill to put us all on the same cycle.

Conflicting Cycles

From The Spectator, Hamilton

SCIENTIST at Montreal's McGill University is studying cycles in the human experience. Not bicycles, but the rhythmic changes that nature has installed in all of us.

It is comforting to know one of the cycles he is studying has to do with the daily fluctuations in human efficiency. This means he is trying to find out why some people are at their best in the early mornings and others later in the day.

It seems all of us are either one or the other.

So far the professor hasn't released any hints about a cure that would enable morning people to put up with the evening people and vice versa. Such a cure is important because half of us are out of kilter with the other half.

Ceylon's Crisis

Handout State

By CYRIL DUNN
from New Delhi

THE fall of the government of Ceylon is no surprise. The ministries of the island have depended on uncertain alliances with no real ideological or even rational foundations. At any moment a shift in rootless loyalties could bring a government down.

By devoting a great deal of her time and talent to the task, Mrs. Bandaranaike has kept herself in office as prime minister for almost a full term. Earlier this year threats to the survival of her regime were acute that she could evade them only by suspending Parliament altogether. Now disaster has overtaken her at last and an island which with prudent government could be an earthly paradise is once more menaced by a destructive political crisis to which there is no visible answer.

It is possible to describe what has happened in Ceylon in simple political terms. In the early summer Mrs. Bandaranaike saved her ministry by forming a parliamentary alliance with Dr. M. N. Perera and his Trotskyites. The right wing of her Sri Lanka Freedom Party accepted this arrangement unwillingly and seem in fact to have prevented her from bolstering her position still further by taking in various Communists of purer doctrine.

A leader of this right-wing protest was Mr. C. P. de Silva, the minister who has now brought about Mrs. Bandaranaike's fall by changing sides. Ostensibly he resigned in protest against the move to nationalize the press, but Mr. de Silva's motives might have included some personal resentment. He was virtually second in command to Mrs. Bandaranaike's husband, the former Premier Solomon Bandaranaike, a great or at least promising Asiatic democrat, who was wastefully assassinated by a Buddhist monk in 1959. Under the widow's regime de Silva has evidently been eased out of power by her favorite nephew Felix.

De Silva is also strictly middle-of-the-road and seems to have felt a growing distaste for extreme policies advocated by Perera and Felix Bandaranaike, who were beginning jointly to dominate the regime.

But simple, straightforward answers are never the complete answer in Ceylon politics. The political life of the island is a marked degree controlled from behind the arras by aristocratic families in a state of endless feud, by powerful Buddhist priests who would welcome dictatorship if it ensured a Buddhist Raj, and by politically-controlled trade unions in a high condition of confusion. It is never easy to determine which of these forces is most effectively at work in any given Ceylon crisis, but a political crisis in which none of them has a share is barely conceivable.

These curious battalions manoeuvre for power on economic foundations which for years now have been steadily sinking, thanks to policies which fill many orthodox economists with incredulous awe. Ceylon was handed back to her people by the British in a uniquely prosperous condition, with enviable foreign reserves. Her main export crops—tea and rubber—are still being profitably sold, though they face mounting competition of various kinds. But the two Bandaranaike governments created in the island what can only be called a handout state, giving the people massive food subsidies, generous pensions and, over the years, a strong sense of their inalienable rights.

As a result, Ceylon's external resources have wasted away to almost nothing. Austerity conscious, as they must surely be, of the swelling economic problems they dare not face, the island's politicians may imaginably find in irrelevant crises such as the current one a welcome distraction.

Mrs. Bandaranaike's fall must now follow by another general election. This might hold some promise for the future if there were in the island a political party sufficiently determined and strong enough to fend off all underground pressures and to convince the people that excessive self-indulgence invariably ends in ruin. Such a party would have to be created by resolute fractions from the parties that already exist and there is as yet no sign that such an amalgamation will occur.

World's Needs

The question of peace in Europe, and of world peace is no longer a matter of superior armaments, or balance of power. We have had some 2,000 years of that, with more devastating wars succeeding one another.

What the world needs and Europe in particular, is a new definition of the word Christianity, and an education to fit the new definition, based upon the teachings of Jesus. At present the various governments of the world are jockeying for political power and the churches for greater authority, until our better-informed youth, of the present day, no longer have sufficient faith in either. They do not want either political or religious hooliganism.

The Buses

To the premier of British Columbia, W. A. C. Bennett, who is most desirous of unloading the B.C. Hydro bus transportation onto the municipalities, and those who would institute any proposed bus fare increase, may you all enjoy a most pleasant Christmas season thinking of the great number of hard-pressed limited income earners, O.A.P.s, small wage earners, etc., who can ill afford this increase, let alone have their own autos for their convenience and necessity.

The same wishes are extended throughout the coming year and years.

May the spirit of Christmas always be with you.

Duck-Adopting Swan Ends Up in Bathtub

A swan which tried to adopt a flock of ducks on McKenzie Avenue this week ended up Tuesday in a bathtub at the SPCA.

"I found the swan in with my ducks the other day," said Sam Utisk, 650 McKenzie. "It made itself right at home."

Mr. Utisk has five acres about two miles from Swan Lake where he keeps two cows, chickens and ducks.

"It's the first swan I've had on the property," he said. "I've had Canada geese before. One came two years ago and stayed until spring."

After two days Mr. Utisk phoned the SPCA and Inspector Everett Ferster picked up the swan.

From a telephoned description, conservation officer W. J. Lenfesty said it was probably a mute swan from Elk Lake or Beacon Hill Park.

Assistant parks administrator

Cliff Bate said it could be from the Elk Lake area.

"We have only four swans at Beacon Hill Park," he said, "and they're all there."

Mr. Lenfesty said it was possible for the bird to proceed by water from Elk Lake to Swan Lake and then walk the two miles to McKenzie Avenue.

An SPCA official said the bird would probably be dropped off at Elk Lake today.

Shaggy Dog Story Not Funny to Him

LOS ANGELES—Robert Hall was on a stepladder painting his kitchen when a shaggy dog wandered in through a door left open for ventilation.

"Scram," said Hall.

The dog wagged his tail.

"Get outta here," Hall commanded.

The dog stepped toward the ladder.

Hall waved a bucket of paint thinner at the dog.

There was an explosion.

The dog scrambled. The service porch caught fire. The kitchen caught fire. Hall scrambled down the ladder and called the fire department. They put out the fire.

The water heater pilot had ignited the paint thinner, said firemen, who reported the incident Monday.

Hall said the damage will cost him $2,800.

LONDON—Queen Elizabeth danced first with Cecil Taylor, honorary treasurer of the Royal Household social club, when members of that club held their annual pre-Christmas dance in Buckingham Palace's state ballroom. Also present were the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon.

Increased Grant Sought by UBCM

The provincial cabinet was asked Tuesday by the Union of B.C. Municipalities for a sizeable increase in grants in lieu of taxes on provincial property.

UBCM president Reeve Peter Jenewein said that the present total of a little more than $500,000 for the whole province "is not a realistic figure to cover the costs of municipal services to provincial property."

The brief noted federal grants to municipalities totalled only $1,400,000 for Canada when introduced in 1950. Since that time these had been broadened to the point where in 1963 the national total stood at $31,500,000.

TWO WAYS
It added that provincial grants to municipalities could be increased either by boosting the present 15-mill allowance or by cutting exemptions.

University property, now exempt, should be included in the base for grants to municipalities, Reeve Jenewein said.

He added that there were financial advantages to be gained by a community from a university but these diminish in the case of largely residential municipalities, particularly those in a metropolitan area.

University property be completely subjected to municipal taxation," the brief said.

"But it is only proper and equitable that (university property) be treated for taxation purposes in the same manner as other provincial government holdings."

The brief also asked for province-wide controls on air pollution, and for the fifth year in succession requested Sunday sports and entertainment.

The UBCM added that it was "well satisfied" with the relationship it enjoys with the department of municipal affairs, but asked for an arrangement whereby the executive of the association may have some prior knowledge of legislation affecting municipalities.

The brief asked that ambulance service be provided under BCHS.

Sailor-Luring Girl Gets Year in Jail

A teen-aged Nancoos Bay girl will spend the next year in jail for acting as bait in the Dec. 8 robbery and beating of an Esquimalt sailor.

Hazel Raftex, 19, pleaded guilty to robbery with violence in the beating that netted only a 12-ounce bottle of rum.

Edward D. Reynolds, 20, of no fixed address, charged at the same time, was sentenced to two years in penitentiary. A second man, Roy Volden, no fixed address, pleaded not guilty.

Canadians Open Study of Island

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — A Canadian scientific mission set up shop on Easter Island Tuesday to study its ancient tribal civilization before the advent of modern man.

The Chilean Navy reported the 25 Canadian scientists arrived Monday night at the island aboard the Royal Canadian Navy transport Cape Scott. The island, owned by Chile, is 2,000 miles out in the Pacific.

Winter Works Helped

Union of B.C. Municipalities president Reeve Peter Jenewein said here Tuesday that revised provincial winter works regulations go "a long way" towards meeting the objections of local governments.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell earlier announced relaxation of regulations that limit B.C. participation to a 50 per cent share of salaries of workers who have been on welfare for three months or more.

Now, where a municipality can furnish proof that no one is available for hiring in this category, the government will pay 25 per cent of the salary of those who have been on welfare less than three months.

In certain cases the same 25 per cent grant will apply to non-welfare cases who are receiving employment assistance.

The latter is a return to regulations as they existed until last fall, but in order to qualify for this grant municipalities must prove there are no welfare cases who could take the job.

"I think this is a move in the right direction. It is not quite what we wanted, but this concession on the part of the provincial government has certainly created a better atmosphere for discussion. I am very pleased about it and look forward to productive talks," Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson said Tuesday night. Reeve Jenewein said yesterday the UBCM executive is "most appreciative" that the government has taken a second look at the matter of winter works grants.

He said after studying the impact of the revised plan this winter the UBCM will seek to present a revised proposal to the government before regulations for the winter of 1965-66 are established.

The municipalities, even under the changed regulations which become effective Jan. 1, will be "rather limited" in benefits under all forms of contract work, the UBCM president said.

Strikebreaking Query Pledged

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration Minister Tremblay told a group of striking Toronto newspaper printers Tuesday that he intends to make a special investigation into the alleged import of United States strikebreakers in Canadian labor disputes.

A breathalyzer test showed he had a blood-alcohol count of .14 per cent.

Magistrate Ostler also ordered an 18-month suspension of the sailor's driving licence.

Boldest change! Best value!

The simple fact of the matter is: Chevrolet is the newest of the new for 1965. It's new coming at you, new passing you (how about that new Sweep-line roof?), and beats all the rest for newness going away. Even Chevrolet's famous Jet-smooth ride has been improved, with new Full Coil front and rear suspensions, a new Wide-Stance tread, more extra-thick body mounts and vibration-squelching insulation at more than 700 points. We put new curved glass in the side windows, and—get this—a new tempered glass rear window in the convertibles. Thirteen out of the fifteen Magic-Mirror colors are new. There's a new rear-mounted linkage in Chevrolet's Ball-Race steering for smoother, more positive handling and control. And if the way Chevrolet looks, and the way Chevrolet rides, and the way it goes is all new, what hasn't changed? Just this: Chevrolet value! For sheer elegance and luxury at a down-to-earth price, no other car can hold a candle to Chevrolet. And the '65 model does more than just maintain that reputation—it builds it! See how '65 Chevrolet does it at your Chevrolet dealer's.

Value of Shares Almost Tripled

Shares in various Canadian companies which cost Argus Corporation $75,242,853 when they acquired them, are now worth $215,989,839 or nearly three times their purchase price.

Argus, which is the holding company for most of the companies in the E. P. Taylor group, now has a net asset value of $20.99 a share, an increase of 51 per cent over the $13.90 valuation of Nov. 30, 1953.

Canadian GM

Strike Talks Continue

TORONTO (UPI) — General Motors' Canadian empire remained idle Tuesday as 23,500 workers continued their 13-day strike in a determined bid to get the same wages and benefits paid their American counterparts.

The United Auto Workers' union was expected to meet with General Motors officials until late last night and again today in a settlement bid. According to company and union spokesmen, the talks were proceeding smoothly with no indication they would be broken off.

The UAW is trying to narrow the gap between wages paid hourly-rated workers in the United States and in Canada. U.S. workers now make anywhere between 40 cents and $1.40 per hour more than Canadian workers.

NO VIOLENCE

Strikers are picketing GM and GM subsidiary plants in Oshawa, St. Catharines, Windsor, London and suburban Scarborough, but as yet there have been no incidents or outbreaks of violence.

The signing of plant level contracts last week left the path to overall negotiations open. However Monday the main Oshawa plant went back to plant talks briefly.

Negotiators are now concentrating on economic issues such as wages, pensions, holiday pay, overtime, insurance premiums and health plans.

MAY END SOON

Both sides are close-mouthed about the discussions but indications from the union and the company were that the walkout might be called off soon, perhaps within a week.

The UAW's last contract with GM, a three-year deal, expired Oct. 31 although discussions of a new contract are now more than four months old.

A three-man conciliation board was unable to offer recommendations toward a settlement Nov. 17 after the rank and file voted in favor of a strike Nov. 8.

PARENT NOV. 8

The walkout followed a three-week general layoff at GM when essential parts from the United States were cut off because of a strike against the parent company this fall.

Even after the U.S. strike had been settled, the freeze on production continued as UAW locals worked out plant level contracts. Because of this, the negotiators decided to clear away the local issues before tackling a master contract covering Canadian workers.

STRIKE PAY

The union is to begin issuing strike pay checks within the next two or three days. Single persons receive $20, married persons $25 and workers with families get $30 per week after the 15th day of the strike.

Merchants in Oshawa and St. Catharines are beginning to feel the pinch as strikers, who are foregoing more than $2,500,000 per week in wages, have drastically reduced their household budgets.

The strike has also hit several feeder companies including Duplate of Canada and Coulter Manufacturing Ltd., which supply GM with vital auto parts.

Some 1,300 cars and trucks should be rolling off GM's assembly lines per day, and the shortage of cars is undoubtedly being felt at many GM dealerships where orders are piling up.

Way Cleared For Talks

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The common market agreement to unify all market grain prices has cleared the way for further talks in Kennedy round tariff negotiations in Geneva.

The decision reached by common market negotiators Tuesday set uniform grain prices in France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

It was pointed out that while Geo's economy was completely geared to base metal prices, Noranda with its interests in fertilizers, lumbering, pulp manufacturing, refining and fabricating was likely to have more stable profits.

Big Year Ahead for Racquet Club Executives

than 100 members, showing keen interest in proposed relocation which would bring new and improved facilities, turned out for the meeting and heard Mr. Pitkethley outline plans. A special meeting will be held early next year for a membership vote.—(W. A. Boucher)

Another Shot For Tiger?

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A return title fight between middleweight champion Joey Giardello and Dick Tiger of Nigeria looms as a strong possibility.

Giardello, fresh from a close win over Rubin Carter Monday night, seemed headed in the direction Thursday although he also talked about a defence against 44-year-old Sugar Ray Robinson or maybe with the winner of a Tiger-Joe Archer fight.

"We got an offer of $75,000 for a title fight with Robinson in January for the Dapper Dan club in Pittsburgh," said Arnold Giovannetti, Giardello's adviser. "But we told promoter Don Elbaum that's too soon and April or May would be better."

Giardello said he'd be glad to meet the winner of a fight between Archer, the No. 1 contender, and Tiger. The 34-year-old champion had a thick welt under his left eye and a red scar over the eye and reddish bruises under the right eye. Carter came out of the 15-rounder unharmed.

"Looks don't mean a thing," said Giardello. "He fought my fight and I don't think he won three rounds."

Giovannetti figured Giardello made about $38,000 over-all fight in June or July. My wife

Koufax Average Lowest

CINCINNATI (AP)—Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers posted the lowest average in 31 years in winning the National League's earned-run championship for the third consecutive season in 1964.

Koufax compiled a 1.74 mark, the official NL pitching records disclosed today. He yielded only 43 earned runs in 223 innings.

Koufax also pitched the most shutouts, seven, and had the highest winning percentage, .792 on a record of 19 victories and only five defeats.

He was sidelined for the final six weeks of the campaign with a sore arm.

The 28-year-old star captured the ERA crown in 1962 with 2.54 and in 1963 with 1.88. The lowest previous average before 1964 was 1.66 by Carl Hubbell of the old New York Giants in 1933.

Don Drysdale, the Dodgers ace right-hander, was the ERA runner-up with a 2.19 average. He also topped the league in game started, 40; innings pitched with 321 and total batters faced, 1,364.

Earned run averages are computed by multiplying the number of earned runs by nine and dividing the total by the innings pitched.

Southpaw Bob Veale of Pittsburgh Pirates was the strikeout king with 250. He also issued the most bases on balls, 124.

Venturi Makes Case

Who Are Big Two In American Golf?

NEW YORK (AP)—Who are the really big two of American golf? Is it Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the leading money winners and recent victors in the international Canada Cup competition in Hawaii?

Or is it any combination of Ken Venturi, Tony Lema and Bobby Nichols, winners of the three big medal-play championships?

WANTS ANSWER Venturi, the reigning United States Open champion, would like an answer. If necessary he would like it in a head-to-head, winner-take-all match on five of the best golf courses in the country.

"I always have thought—long before this year—that winning the U.S. Open was the major achievement in golf and that the man who grabs it should represent his country in an event like the Canada Cup," Venturi, the Professional Golfers Association's golfer of the year, said today.

"Frankly, I was offended because I wasn't chosen on the team this year. Bobby Nichols should have been equally upset."

"Between us, we won four of the six major tournaments in the matter of prestige. I won the Open and the American Classic. Bobby won the PGA and the Carling World Lema won the British Open and Palmer the Masters."

Nicklaus and Palmer were picked to represent the United States in the Canada Cup. Rightfully, the two positions should have gone to the Open and PGA champions.

CHALLENGE MATCH Venturi said he would like to team with Lema in a challenge match against Nicklaus and Palmer, the best three-of-five best-ball matches on five outstanding courses.

"The long-time policy has been for the host country to pick the American team," said Fred Corcoran, tournament director of the International Golf Association. "We submit a list of six players chosen by the PGA, and the host country rates them in order of preference."

Halfback Returns CALGARY (CP)—Gerry Shaw, a Calgary footballer who spent last season as a defensive halfback with Washington State University, has signed a contract with Calgary Stampede for 1965.

Shaw was a key player with Calgary Junior Cougars before moving to Washington in 1962. He played end for Washington State for two seasons, before switching to the defensive halfback post this year.

Matthews Gets Ready To Return STOCKPORT (Reuters)—Stanley Matthews, former England right-winger who will be 50 in February, played in a charity game here Tuesday night to test whether he is in shape for a return to league soccer.

Matthews got the tying goal two minutes from the end for the combined Sheffield United-Sheff City team in a 3-3 deadlock with a combined Stockport County-Doncaster Rovers side.

The Stoke maestro would not say whether he is ready for a quick return to league football, in which he last played nine months ago. A sprained back has kept him out of action all this season.

Trojans Take Island Crown NANAIMO — Victoria Trojans, sparked by two great runs by Ken Skinner, won the Vancouver Island bantam Canadian football championship for the third straight year on Sunday by defeating Nanaimo Redmen, 25-14, in a rancorous game.

Skinner got Trojans on the way by returning the opening kickoff for 75 yards and a touchdown, then put it out of reach in the last minute of play by going 78 yards from scrimmage for his second major score.

Mike Gibson and Curt Clarke scored the other Trojan touchdowns and Clarke provided the other point by taking a pass from Dennis Sommer to convert his own touchdown.

Ill feeling, brought on by the thinking that game officials were less than competent, boiled over as the convert try was being made on Skinner's last touchdown. A general melee in which there was considerable shoving and a few punches thrown, resulted. Team officials broke it up before it got out of control.

Canadian Universities To Stage Bowl Game TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union approved in principle Tuesday a proposal to support a charity-sponsored national football bowl game on the pattern of annual invitation bowls in the United States.

A charitable organization, which wanted its identity kept private until the project is confirmed, proposed a Canadian bowl at a meeting of the union's board of governors and administrative committee.

Wings Worried

Howe's Record Goal Last One in Month

DETROIT (AP)—Gordie Howe is in a slump and Detroit Red Wings are worried about it. The last time the 36-year-old right winger put the puck into the net was Nov. 14. That was against Montreal Canadiens and it gave Howe the National Hockey League scoring record with 627 regular-season and playoff goals, one more than Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Since then, Howe has played 630 minutes and 40 seconds without a goal.

"It's starting to get me," said Howe after the Wings lost 5-0 to the Black Hawks in Chicago Sunday night. "I wish I could get something so I could help the team."

Manager-coach Sid Abel glanced at the statistics sheet. "Look at that," he said. "Howe had 10 shots on the net. Nobody else was close to him. Bobby Hull had five for the Hawks."

Howe nodded agreement. "Sure. I hit his toe with one, his elbow with another... and his stick with another."

SOME CHANGE Howe shrugged, and Abel added: "We've got to get Gordie out of this thing and started somehow. We are going to sit down before Wednesday's game in New York and see if we can't figure some lineup shift that might help him get going."

Howe's current 12-game slump is the worst of his 19-year NHL career. He had two nine-game goalless periods earlier, from Nov. 25 to Dec. 17 in 1947 and from Dec. 20 to Jan. 10 in 1953.

During the slump, the Wings' top line of Howe, Alex Delvecchio and Ron Murphy has been somewhat ineffective. Howe has had five assists but two of those were on power plays.

Abel is thinking about putting Howe on another line, maybe with Ted Lindsay and Phil Martin.

In spite of the fact that Vancouver Island's fall weather this year was too fine for good hunting, the final figures of total deer harvest are expected to show somewhere between 20,000 and 25,000... in the neighborhood of last year's 23,500 deer harvest.

That is because the harvest up-land was exceptionally good, contrasting with generally poor hunting in mid and lower-island regions.

Campbell River area recorded a 23.82 per cent success, compared with 21.80 per cent last year.

Most areas are still under-harvested, says regional game biologist Don McCaughan. But Northwest Bay area is reaching its maximum harvest with 20 per cent of the deer population taken from this most heavily hunted area on Vancouver Island. McCaughan says a 25 per cent harvest would be maximum.

Blue grouse harvest was away down, but the willow grouse harvest was up, although McCaughan says hunters could take two or three times as many willows, without denting the population.

He says he will recommend that the willow grouse season be extended by two weeks, to Dec. 31 next year, so hunters can hunt them under ideal conditions with dogs, after the leaves have fallen from the alder thickets.

McCaughan urges all hunters to complete their questionnaires as soon as possible, whether or not they got game and even if they didn't hunt. All the answers count in final conclusions, he says.

Victoria Fish and Game Club hunter success counts at club gates show 3,210 hunters bagged 337 bucks, 110 antlers, and 657 grouse, for deer success of 16 per cent.

Broken down by game: 19 Creek, 608 hunters, 52 bucks, 12 antlers, 631 grouse, 10 per cent; Gordon River, 1,184 hunters, 159 bucks, 41 antlers, 26 grouse, 17.3 per cent; Butlers, 517 hunters, 53 bucks, 10.5 per cent; Malar Creek, 831 hunters, 73 bucks, 37 antlers, 16 grouse, 15.6 per cent.

Results of action over the season by fish and game branch show: Nanaimo River, 1,178 hunters, 142 bucks, 66 does, 51 fawns, 259 total, 22.02 per cent success; Ash River, 2,610 hunters, 153 bucks, 63 does, 34 fawns, 240 total, 9.20 per cent success, 19 checking days; Campbell River, 2,278 hunters, 325 bucks, 151 does, 60 fawns, 545 total, 23.92 per cent success, 10 checking days; Cayenne, 1,675 hunters, 157 bucks, 60 does, 53 fawns, 279 total, 16.66 per cent success, 15 days; Comox Lake, 2,228 hunters, 249 bucks, 116 does, 13 fawns, 378 total, 16.97 per cent success, 25 checking days.

Copper Canyon, 3,181 hunters, 202 bucks, 77 does, 67 fawns, 346 total, 10.95 per cent; 26 checking days; Northwest Bay, 4,517 hunters, 241 bucks, 118 does, 78 fawns, 437 total, 9.67 per cent, 28 days; Southern Vancouver Island, 1,381 hunters, 114 bucks, 46 does, 28 fawns, 188 total, 14.06 per cent, nine days; Nanaimo Lakes, 4,430 hunters, 220 bucks, 89 does, 28 fawns, 337 total, 7.57 per cent, 26 days; Wolf Lake, 3,041 hunters, 174 bucks, 76 does, 25 fawns, 275 total, 9.04 per cent, 25 days.

In Greater Victoria Water District 838 hunter trips resulted in 29 bucks, 20 does, 10 fawns, 59 total, for 7 per cent hunter success. In 1963 success was 19.4 per cent and in 1962 it was 20.1 per cent.

Biggest deer shot on the Island was John Price's 228-pounder shot in the Cowichan area on opening weekend. Generally deer were bigger this year. Here are Victoria fish and game button winners: Gordon McKenna 160 pounds; Gary J. Ralph, 154; V. Hohlachoff, 165; Eric Cole, 173; Lloyd Noeler, 188; K. Ash, 155; F. Doping Measure Passes

PARIS (UPI)—The French National Assembly Tuesday passed a bill laying down stiff fines and suspensions for athletes found using dope during sporting events.
 The bill, however, must be returned to the Senate as the Lower House made several changes to the version first passed by the Senate Nov. 3.
 The measure calls for fines ranging between 500 and 5,000 francs ($100 to $1,000) for sportsmen found to have used any substances, as defined by the administration, with the object of artificially and temporarily improving their physical efforts, and dangerous to their health.
 Persons aiding them in doping are subject to the same fines, as are any sportsmen who refuse to take medical tests when ordered by the police.
 The athletes and their handlers can also be suspended from all competition for periods ranging from three months to five years, under the new law.

Two Big Goals For Saunders

NANAIMO—Roy Saunders scored the tying and winning goals for Parksville Rangers when they defeated Nanaimo Westview Rovers 4-3 in a Suburban Hockey League game here Sunday.
 League-leading scorer Harry Elzinga scored twice for Duncan as they defeated Nanaimo Juveniles 5-2 in the second half of the doubleheader.

Reward Sent to Police

Victoria's police commission will have the task of deciding Thursday what is to be done with a $50 reward sent to police Monday.

William Scott, proprietor of Broad-Johnson Trading Centre, sent police the money plus his thanks for recovery of $2,000 worth of used watches and rings stolen earlier from his store.

He had originally offered a $100 reward for information resulting in recovery of the loot and conviction of the persons responsible for the theft.

Application Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — The air transport board said it has rejected an application by Cross Lake Air Service to operate an irregular, specific point commercial service from Wabowden, Man., to serve Point Cross Lake.

The other $50 will still be paid if a conviction is obtained in the case, said Mr. Scott.

The watches were stolen by thugs who beat the store's manager at his home and stole keys to the building.

Sooke RCMP Seek Boom Chain Thief

A muscular and energetic thief who stole four tons of boom chains some time during the weekend is being sought by Sooke RCMP.

The theft of the 140 feet of chain was reported by Canadian Puget Sound Logging Co. It disappeared from the company's storage area on Whiffin Spit Road, said RCMP.

Police speculate the chain is destined to be sold as scrap or resold as boom chain.

RCMP Trained, Interested In Traffic Duty

By AL ARNANSON

The RCMP is both "interested" and properly trained for traffic enforcement, a senior Victoria officer of the force said Tuesday in answer to statements made Monday by provincial highways minister Gagliardi.

Superintendent G. R. Engel, whose duties include supervision of traffic regulations in B.C., said police statistics show both diligent enforcement and advanced specialized training of traffic officers.

Mr. Gagliardi had said in Vancouver that B.C. should have highway patrols with police powers similar to those in the United States.

AGREES IN PART
The highways minister had added: "I don't know whether the RCMP are really interested to that degree in the traffic business. Primarily their organization is better trained for other jobs."

Supt. Engel said he agreed that more highway patrolling is necessary and desirable. "But we are most certainly interested in enforcement."

To back up the statement he quoted statistics.
The force uses 97 men full time on highway patrol duty and another 45 men on municipal traffic duty.

During the past six months the RCMP has:

- Logged 287,000 highway miles.
- Stopped 180,000 vehicles.
- Issued 29,000 orders to repair defective vehicles.
- Prosecuted 24,000 traffic offenders.

LONG WEEKS

As to effort, said the policeman, RCMP traffic men averaged 200 hours a month on duty, which is close to 50 hours a week.

He also said all RCMP traffic men are trained in all forms of police work, but this does not detract from their ability in traffic enforcement.

"Selected members are given the best of specialized traffic training and their experience level is high," said the officer.

He said the average traffic patrolman has nine years' police experience and 8½ years in traffic.

No Alcohol For Kuwait

KUWAIT (Reuters)—Prohibition now is in force in Kuwait under a law providing 10 years in prison for the manufacture of alcoholic drinks or their import for trading purposes. Exempted are foreign embassies importing alcoholic drinks for private use.

Putting out fire is mighty thirsty work. Always was, always will be—the kind of work that calls for real refreshment. May Be Abandoned

New Blow Aimed At Free Parking

The Victoria Parking Commission added its voice to those of other organizations opposed to Ald. Robert Baird's scheme to allow free car parking downtown over Christmas.

The commission, like the merchants in the 700 block, Fort Street and the Downtown Business Association, felt that early arrivals would usurp the parking spaces and keep them all day, thus having the effect of curtailing parking rather than extending it.

IDEA CRITICIZED

It did suggest that the city might consider suspending the low-away bylaw for four days prior to Christmas.

"What sort of thinking is this?" asked City Manager Dennis Young.

"They would have us suspend the bylaw designed to keep traffic flowing freely at a time when it is most needed."

The whole idea of free parking will be abandoned quite probably on Thursday at the next meeting of city council.

Canadian Nun 'Under Study'

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The congregation of rites of the Roman Catholic Church examined the writings of a 19th-century Canadian nun Tuesday as a step toward possible beatification. Open House Celebration Today

Victoria Library Marks First Century

One hundred years of library service will be celebrated at the Victoria public library with an open house at 3 p.m. today. Coffee and cookies will be served to visitors, and on display will be books and magazines dating back to 1864. The library started out 100 years ago as the Mechanics Institute Library, a private institution operating on a subscription basis. Several unsuccessful attempts to start libraries had been made before that time. The institute library, in financial difficulties in 1887, turned over its 4,500 books to the city, and the public library came into being. The library was in the former Farden Building then moved to the second floor of the city hall in 1890 until the present building was completed in 1906. In 1951 the new wing was added.

At the open house today chief librarian John Lort will be present along with his predecessors, Mrs. Theresa Shensone, formerly Miss Pollock, Miss Margaret Clay and Dr. Helen G. Stewart, who will cut a birthday cake.

Wilkinson Road Guard Says:

Suggestions Cost Job

By JACK FRY

A former guard at the Wilkinson Road provincial jail claimed Tuesday he was fired within an hour after submitting a report on how conditions could be improved at the jail.

Ron Douglass, 2633 Cadboro Bay Road, said he lost his job last Friday as temporary security officer after submitting a report containing 10 recommendations made by the prisoners themselves.

The 40-year-old ex-Royal Marine, married and the father of four children ranging in age from six weeks to 18 years, now faces a bleak Christmas.

S. Rockborough Smith, provincial director of correction for the attorney-general's department, said later he will look into the matter though the hiring and firing of temporary officers usually does not come to his attention.

"Any of our officers—whether temporary or permanent—who come forward with good suggestions are not going to be let out. These are the kind of people we want," he said.

"Nobody would be released from service for giving good advice—that's just balderdash," Mr. Smith said.

Mr. Douglass' report to his superior officers recommended:

- Something should be done to reduce the amount of idle time spent by the prisoners.

- Prisoners should be allowed to see more television.

He Passed Along Prisoners' Ideas

- The jail should have more sports equipment.
- A monthly musical concert is needed.

- Prisoners should be allowed to have hobbies.

- The jail should have a reading room for prisoners who are taking correspondence courses.

- Movies should be shown at the jail.

- There should be an "inmates committee" to serve as a liaison between the prisoners and the warden.

- Prisoners should be allowed to have musical instruments.

- There should be a Catholic as well as Anglican padre for the Sunday morning service.

The controversial report also pointed out that prisoners see only one or two hours of television a week and that up to 75 prisoners crowd into the gymnasium to watch the shows on a single television set.

Mr. Douglass said there are so many prisoners that work gets done early in the day and there are "not enough jobs to go around."

Very few correspondence courses are ever completed at the jail because the cells are too poorly lighted for study purposes and the "day room" is too noisy from prisoners playing cards and checkers, he said.

The report came about when Mr. Douglass, after six weeks as a temporary guard, was asked to conduct a group counselling session with some of the prisoners.

"We talked about how to improve the lot of the inmates. The prisoners joined in but said they felt when it was over that it would go no further than the talk itself."

Mr. Douglass said he filed his report on what the prisoners had said and that he was fired a short while later as he was going off shift.

"The idea of the whole thing is supposed to be rehabilitation," he said. "There are some there who keep going back but there are also a lot of 17- and 18-year-olds who I think can be helped to become useful citizens if they are put on the right track."

Mr. Douglass was born in Nottingham, England. He served 10 years in the Royal Marines and was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for helping his wounded comrades off a sinking LCG (Landing Craft Gun) during a landing at the Port of Antwerp during the Second World War.

The ship, hammered by German 88-millimetre short batteries, took 28 hits before sinking some 100 yards from shore, and Douglass was the last man to leave the vessel. He participated in three other invasion landings during the war.

He then joined the Canadian Army and served for five years, part of them at Work Point Barracks in Esquimalt. He did various types of work after getting out of the army here, prior to working at the Wilkinson Road jail.

Board of Health Explosion Sparked by $300

By A. H. MURPHY

Using a $300 cost item as a fuse and a medical appointment as explosive, Victoria representatives sparked a Metropolitan Board of Health explosion Tuesday.

A final result may be a complete reorganization of the board with a new constitution and a reassessment of the position and contributions of the various communities.

"This has been a protracted meeting but some good may come of it," said the chairman, Central Saanich Reeve Gordon Lee.

"It may clarify problems of overlapping, cost and administration. A study will be made before the next meeting of the board."

Opening gun was fired by Victoria Ald. Lily Matthews during discussion of an item of $300 a year.

The board proposed to take this money from a bequest which pays the city $1,500 a year for child welfare, to pay transportation for an audiologist to visit Victoria periodically in conjunction with a projected educational program for pre-school hard-of-hearing children.

"I have strict instructions from my council not to approve of the expenditure of any money not in this year's budget," said Ald. Wilson.

City Manager Dennis Young took up the cudgel.

Under the original terms of the bequest it could not be used for that purpose, he said.

Furthermore, he added, while the expenditure of the $300 was not a budget item as such, it was still beyond the jurisdiction of the board of health as it was now constituted.

City Not Informed

Mr. Young added that it was not the $300 which worried Victoria. It was a matter that the city was not informed about the board's actions.

The city, Esquimalt and Oak Bay were paying the costs of these services and surely were entitled to know what was going on, Mr. Young said.

A motion that the program for deaf children be implemented in 1965, and that money for the audiologist's transportation be included in the 1965 budget was passed.

Next phase of the dispute started quietly.

Dr. Whitbread explained that he and his assistant and the city personnel officer had an appointment lined up for today regarding the naming of a pediatrician to the board staff.

Whose Responsibility?

However, inasmuch as Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay were paying the shot they deserved to know when budget items were overexpended.

After a spirited discussion about why Victoria council was not kept in the picture, and whose responsibility it was to keep council informed, Dr. Whitbread suggested that he cancel the appointment.

He added that the city personnel officer had been kept informed all the way and had, in fact, written the advertisement for a pediatrician which had been placed in the medical journals.

Mr. Young reiterated that the salary would be paid by the "Will this new doctor be paid at the same rate as Dr. Mahaffy?" asked Ald. Wilson, referring to Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy, who retired from the staff some months ago.

"Because if the new rate is not provided for in the 1965 budget we will vote against it," Ald. Wilson added.

"Your provision would tie the hands of the medical officers in this appointment," said Reeve Lee.

"Yes it would," retorted Mrs. Wilson.

After being reprimanded for not addressing the chair before speaking, Mr. Young said that the city was not implying that there was anything improper in the actions of the medical officers or the board.

He pointed out that the board of health was merely an advisory board without a legal institution. Its financial backing came from the province, Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, and when salary changes were made these participants wanted to know.

Final decision was to send a letter to Victoria, Oak Bay and Esquimalt asking approval of the new salary schedule. Meanwhile, the appointment with the potential staff doctor will be postponed.

House Fire Blamed On Child, Candle

Two rooms were in charred ruins in the home of E. F. McDonald, 1330 Richardson, Tuesday night after an eight-year-old boy accidentally set fire to curtains while playing with a candle, police reported.

Furniture and fittings in the living room and dining room of the home were destroyed. The remainder of the house was filled with smoke.

Damage was estimated at $3,000.

Jaycees Extend Lighting Deadline

Victoria Jaycees have extended the entry deadline for their Christmas Lighting Contest to 5 p.m. Friday.

Four categories, house, window or door, depiction of Christmas message and group display of three or more adjacent houses, are open.

Entry forms are available from the Jaycee office, 1217 Douglas, Hudson's Bay, Eaton's, Woodward's and Woolco Stores or B.C. Hydro.

There are prizes for first, second and third places in the first three categories and for first-year entries.

A special award is offered for the group entries and there are prizes for the photo contest winners.

Prizes are on display at the B.C. Hydro building.

Different Jobs Given To Police Inspectors

City Police Chief J. F. Gregory has ordered a shuffle in key personnel in his department to take effect Jan. 3.

The chief said the changes are in keeping with policy of allowing members of the force to become familiar with all phases of police work.

Inspector C. J. Webb will transfer from administration to patrol division; Insp. Brooks Douglass from traffic to administration and Insp. R. G. Mailand from patrol to traffic.

Detective James Baxter and patrol Sgt. Edward Hardy will exchange jobs as will Sgt. Ron Bentley of patrol and Sgt. Don Buie of traffic.

A resolution designed to prevent the Saanich Peninsula from becoming one huge subdivision was passed unanimously Monday at a public meeting of the Community Planning Association of Canada, Capital Region Branch.

The resolution urges provincial and municipal governments to halt the conversion of farm, recreational and parkland to other uses.

It also asks removal of school taxes from farmland. The farmer should be taxed only on his house and the land it sits on until another base for education tax is evolved.

FARM VALUE

William Craven, assistant assessor for Saanich, said that care is taken to give farmers an assessment advantage only when the land is used for farming.

In that case the land is not assessed the value as real estate but at its value to another farmer.

J. D. Baird, assistant deputy minister of municipalities, said a restrictive covenant could be placed on farm land so it would be used for farming and nothing else. Such land would be completely exempt from taxes.

If the covenant were broken, the owner would repay taxes.

Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston was discharged from Royal Jubilee Hospital Monday after undergoing minor surgery.

Arbitration Board Sits Friday

A three-man arbitration board will sit at 10 a.m. Friday at Craigdarroch to deliberate on teachers salaries for the Greater Victoria school district.

City lawyer Gerald Sullivan is chairman of the board. Trustee nominee is lawyer Kenneth Murphy and the teachers' nominee is retired school teacher Mrs. Hazel Hodson.

Charles Owens, general secretary of the B.C. Teachers Federation and city teacher Norman Preston will speak for the teachers and Frank Reder, secretary of the B.C. School Trustees Association will represent the board.

Quebec Council Honors Wilson

"I guess I'll really have to work on my French now," said Mayor R. B. Wilson Tuesday when told that he had been made an honorary citizen of the Quebec municipality of Sahberry de Valleyfield.

Valleyfield is the home of Mayor Renaire Cauchon, who sparkplugged the Quebec end of the plan which brought 300 mayors and their wives to Victoria for a three-day visit in the middle of November.

"I am pleased and honored by this gesture of goodwill and friendship," said Mayor Wilson when told of the action of the Valleyfield council.

1882 Ruling Decides Election

By TED GASKELL

Judgments handed down as far back as 1882 helped to decide the Sooke school board election Tuesday.

In Saturday's election John Pearson polled 103 votes to incumbent R. E. Fryer's 100 in the fight for the Milne's Landing seat.

Returning officer L. W. Wheel-don wasn't sure about some of the crosses on the ballots so he called in board solicitor Sean Howard.

Some ballots had crosses which bore little embellishment; some had loops or tails and one had an extra line which made it into a star.

All were ruled in order after a study of the lawbooks and the official count confirmed Saturday's totals of 103 to 100.

Mr. Howard said that in the late 19th century a Judge Gowan ruled that if a ballot made it clear who the voter's choice was, then the ballot was a good one.

The judge noted that particularly in rural areas crosses were often unorthodox due to nervousness or awkwardness on the part of the voter; a desire to embellish the mark and in some cases the roughness of the table on which the ballot rested was held responsible for poor crosses.

After one election, a judge was called upon to rule individually on nearly every ballot.

One ballot, marked with a line under the chosen candidate's name, was held to be proper. In the old days need for strict rules on marking stemmed from the practice of buying votes.

The voter who was promised payment would give a kind of receipt in advance by putting a special sign or symbol on the ballot paper in addition to the customary cross.

When the candidate saw the sign as he watched the count, he would know that the voter had kept his word and was entitled to his reward.

Skating Star Sends Fare To Parents for Christmas

By TRUDY KEMP

This will be the first Christmas away from home for petite Ann-Margreth Frei, one of the stars of 1964 Ice Capades which opens this evening at the Memorial Arena.

But it won't be a lonesome Christmas for the attractive, blonde skater who, along with the rest of the cast, will be entertained at a big family party on Christmas Eve in Spokane, Wash. And on Christmas Day Ann-Margreth and her roommate, Gabriele, also a star in the show, will have their own little party for a few friends. They have already ordered a tree, and for the past three weeks have been busy making beautiful and unique decorations to help make their hotel rooms seem "a little bit like home" at this special time of year.

And on Christmas Eve, Ann-Margreth's parents who are living in Lausanne, Switzerland, will know just how much their daughter's thoughts are with them when they open their present from her. It contains two return tickets to Hawaii which she hopes they will use next spring in time to take in the last shows of the season. It will also be their first time to see her skating with the Ice Capades.

The attractive Swedish-born skater is fairly new to the cast of Ice Capades International company, having signed a contract with management shortly after the 1964 Winter Olympics in Innsbruck.

Ann-Margreth

Miss Frei who is three-times Swedish champion and twice Scandinavian champion, is featured in the Kiddie Circus and Viva Italia production numbers for the 1965 Show.

Her first love was ballet and she had hoped to follow in her mother's footsteps and become a ballerina. However, as a young child in her native land of Sweden, Ann-Margreth developed lung trouble, and the doctors recommended fresh air and outdoor activities. It was about that time her parents moved to Switzerland, where they have lived the past 14 years, and started their young daughter on skating and skiing lessons.

"My lung trouble cleared up but by then I had caught skating fever," she said.

She recalled it was quite a different story when she was about four years old. At that time her parents were living in Stockholm and used to skate across a little lake near their home to visit friends.

"I can remember how I used to hate it when my parents would put those horrible two-runner skates on my feet and then drag me across the ice. I guess I protested so much my father started to carry me in a pack used for hiking," she laughed.

Ann-Margreth started skating seriously when she was 12 years of age and by the time she was 16 she was practicing in the morning before school, at noon, after school and weekends.

In spite of the rigorous training she was still able to keep up with her studies and finished regular school when 16 years old. She then went to England for about two years and carried on both with her general education and her skating.

In addition the 22-year-old skater knows five languages, including Swedish, French, English, German and Italian and is now busy learning Spanish. While in England she lived with an English family in Richmond just outside London which, she said, helped her understand the people better and learn the language quicker.

Ann-Margreth and Gabriele have been roommates from the time they joined the Ice Capades, which was around the same date. They both love to cook and whenever they can they try to get a room with a kitchenette when on tour.

"We love the traveling that goes with this profession but, like most women, feel the need to have some place to come home to when finished," she pointed out.

This is their first visit to Canada, and Vancouver was the first Canadian city.

"It made me homesick when I arrived in Victoria. Your scenery reminds me so much of home."

Miss Frei said she was looking forward to performing here. "Canadians are good audiences. They seem to know about skating. You can just feel it," she explained.

Besides her parents at home, Ann-Margreth has an 11-year-old brother who is more than proud of his sister's accomplishments.

"In fact he wants to do something competitive now. He'll probably take up skiing as he likes it."

Miss Frei said she was pleased with her brother's attitude as she felt competition was good for a person.

"It teaches you to lose gracefully. It's easy to win a competition but much harder to lose it," she emphasized.

Christmas Shopping Woes

By PATRICIA MCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—Unhappiness at Christmas shopping time is:

—You and your bundles not fitting into a phone booth.

—Dropping your bundles as you try to wedge them onto that little shelf space by your teeny-tiny place at a lunch counter.

—Being the first customer after they've sold the last of the imported cat scratching posts you wanted to put in your puss's boot by the fireplace.

—Being at the back of a crowded elevator and the only one wanting out at the second floor.

—Finding you've left the address list for those out-of-town relatives at home—after the saleslady writes up the sale.

—Losing your charge plate in that duflie bag you call a purse.

—Breaking a heel on an escalator when you have just two more gifts to go and the store has just 15 minutes to go 'til closing time.

—Trying to hail a cab with face and head motions when hands and arms are loaded with packages.

—Running into your husband's very dignified boss in the lingerie department.

—Not having a dime when you get to the rest room.

—Having the bottom of your shopping bag break open.

—Dropping your shopping bag when the handles rip off.

—Getting confused at the tie counter when you learn they've run out of gift boxes for ties.

—Listening to strains of "Oh, come all ye faithful" blaring over the store's loudspeaker while you try to keep from getting toppled by the pushing, shoving crowds.

—Finding they've run out of your kind of Christmas card when you need just three more.

—Screaming when someone steps on your corn.

—Being told you'll have to take that toy wagon with you because they can't promise delivery in time for Christmas.

—Finding they won't have time to monogram your husband's gift handkerchiefs until after the first of the year.

—Remembering you've forgotten your father-in-law's glove size.

—Watching them put up the "closed" sign in the store's tea room just when you need a coffee break.

—Your shoes start to pinch.

—You can't keep within the limits of your Christmas budget because everything costs just a little bit more than you figured.

—At spree's end, having the bus driver close the door in your face and pull away just as it starts to rain.

Penticton Wedding Of Interest Here

Principals in a wedding solemnized in Penticton, recently, were Gillian Margaret, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Darters, Naramata, B.C., and Gilbert William Mouat of Vancouver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Colin F. Mouat, formerly of Ganges and now residents of Federal Way, Wash.

Tall white tapers in candelabra provided the soft glow of candlelight for the double-ring ceremony performed by Rev. W. S. Beames, in St. Saviour's Anglican Church, Penticton. White chrysanthemums and ivy decorated the church and soloist was the groom's aunt, Mrs. Allan of North Vancouver who sang Thelma's "The God of Love My Shepherd Is," accompanied at the organ by her husband, Dr. John A. Allan.

Given in marriage by her father, the radiant bride chose a formal-length gown of white silk velvet with gently pleated skirt, caught at the back with an obi sash, and extending to a cathedral-length train. Her finger-tip illusion veil misted from a coronet held in place by a circlet of tiny white flowers and she carried a bouquet of Cattleya orchids, freesia, white heather and ivy.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Robert Clarke of Kamloops was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Chambers and Miss Sandra Murray, both of Vancouver. They wore identical formal length gowns of teal-green velvet, styled with Empire waistlines and softly gathered skirts. Rounded necklines, elbow length sleeves and obi sashes at the back, echoed the lovely line of the bride's gown.

Patrick Lee of Victoria was best man and ushering were Frank O'Brien and Wayne Gilles of Vancouver.

A reception followed at the Pilgrim's House where the three-tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride with her father's sword. The bride's toast was proposed by Mr. Stuart Hawkins of Victoria.

For a honeymoon to the Southern states and Mexico the bride wore a three-piece ensemble in Royal blue tweed with matching velvet hat, black accessories and gardenia corsage. On their return the young couple will make their home in Vancouver.

Before leaving the bride presented her bouquet to the groom's grandmother, Mrs. William Allan of Vancouver, formerly of Victoria.

St. Ursuline Nuns Go Modern

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP)—The nun, identified since the middle ages by her black, cumbersome garb, has begun to cast off antiquity to keep pace in this world of the atom.

In this city, two Roman Catholic sisters belonging to the Order of St. Ursuline are substituting modern dress for their traditional, medieval-style habit.

"I feel like I've been freed and let out of armor," said Sister Immaculata, who now looks more like an airline stewardess than a servant of the church.

Her snappy new outfit consists of a straight, black skirt that strikes the leg just below the knee, and a black waistcoat over a white, long-sleeved blouse.

The order's motto, "only for the glory of God," is sewn on the waist. Headquarters of the order is in Paola, Kan.

Sister Immaculata's partner in new fashion is Sister Stephen, who designed the outfit. Both teach at Bishop McGuinness High School in Oklahoma City.

"I feel like I have gender again," said Sister Immaculata after wearing her new outfit for several days.

The experiment in fashion, given impetus by the Vatican council in Rome recently, was authorized by Sister Immaculata's superior, Mother Charles McGrath of Paola.

The two young nuns will model the habit for the Ursuline community during Christmas vacation. Sister Stephen said the community may vote on whether to adopt the change next August.

Here's proof positive that an assortment of furniture styles and finishes can be melded into an attractive, integrated room scheme. At first observation you might consider this family room a hodgepodge of furniture finishes, but that's its beauty. This casual blending is a typical characteristic of popular French Provincial styling. The tall cabinet is painted antique green, and dining table, chairs, and rush-seat stool are finished in varying wood tones. All the pieces are copies of old French furniture. As in nature itself, a blending of woods adds beauty to a room. Remember in mixing furniture styles that the general flavor of the room should be either formal or informal, as it is here. Careful use of color can often help to unify furniture of mixed ancestry. Here, the blue and white tones accent the Provincial look. — (Copyright, 1964, Better Homes and Gardens)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I doubt that you have ever received a letter as nutty as this one. Please print your answer because I've got to understand what's going on.

I am a 16-year-old girl. My best friend is 16 also. I will call her Wendy. Last night Wendy was at my house and we were talking—just the two of us. Suddenly she said, "How can I get bronchial pneumonia?" I asked her what in the world she wanted to get bronchial pneumonia for. She answered, "Oh I don't want to die or anything like that. I'd just like to get sick enough to go to the hospital so people will send me cards and flowers and the fellows will visit me and see me in my nightgown with my hair loose."

I was shocked at her idea of fun. Have you ever heard of anything so far out? Is Wendy crazy or what? Thanks for your help.—CANT DIG IT

Dear Can't Dig: Anyone who has had bronchial pneumonia will tell you it's no fun. But of course Wendy doesn't really want to be sick, she just wants the fringe benefits.

Disease is a sure-fire attention-getter. Moreover it provides a respectable excuse for not going to school or to work. Some people who fail to get attention from day-to-day achievements conveniently get sick. You'd be surprised at the number of so-called adults who resort to this technique—often without realizing it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I own a small novelty shop. We have rented the apartment above our shop to some friends.

Last week we learned that their teen-age son has been stealing merchandise. My husband and I are upset and don't know what to do. We are reluctant to tell the boy's parents because it might end a longtime friendship.

Your counsel is badly needed.

—TORN
Parents: Don't talk to the parents. Talk to the boy. Avoid preaching or threatening. Explain that you are deeply disappointed in him but you are confident he can straighten around and you are willing to let him prove it.

If he continues to steal after you've had the talk, then you must tell his parents.

Dear Ann Landers: For years I've been reading your column and hating you for your stand against divorce. More than once as I read your drug replies I shouted aloud, "What does SHE know about the feelings of the tortured people involved! How can SHE give such pat answers on the basis of a single letter?" Today I am singing a different tune. You were right all along.

Shad and I didn't care who we hurt. We couldn't live without each other. I thought Shad had more class than any man I'd ever known. He thought the same about me. Living together has shown us we were both wrong.

After six months we are calling it quits. Shad is going back to his former wife. She is willing to take him back because of the children. I am not so fortunate. My husband doesn't want me broken hearts. We tried and it didn't work.

—GUILTY AS CHARGED
Dear Guilty: I plan to keep telling 'em—so long as my typewriter holds together. Now quit beating yourself and try to build a new life—somehow.

White Fire
the darling perfume from England in the ruby bottle
GROSVENOR PICCADILLY LONDON

Couple Married At Metropolitan

White and yellow chrysanthemums decorated Metropolitan United Church for the marriage of Ethel Janet Pepper and Mr. Lorne Raymond McLeod. Rev. Albert E. King officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Pepper, Bowser, B.C., and son of Mr. and Mrs. L. V. P. McLeod, 1715 Newton Gardens.

The bride was lovely in a floor-length white peau de sole gown with fitted bodice and scooped neckline. Skirt featured a straight front panel with fullness at sides and in back where it fell into a short train. For "something borrowed" she wore a gold cross and her four-tiered veil misted to elbow-length from headpiece of organza rosebuds. She carried a crescent bouquet of yellow Talisman roses and ivy leaves.

Maid of honor, Miss Jocelyn Melver, and bridesmaids, the Misses Marlene Simpson and Pat Holbrook, were gowned alike in bronze hammered satin. Their sleeveless, street-length dresses were fashioned with belted skirts, fitted bodices and scooped necklines. They wore satin and net veiling headpieces en tone and carried baby busses and yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Randy Smith was best man. Ushering were Mr. Robert McLeod and Mr. Harold Pepper. Mr. Howard Pepper proposed the toast to his niece at a reception in Club Tango. Centring the bride's table was three-tier cake made by her grandmother, Mrs. E. Holgate.

For a honeymoon trip to B.C. mainland the bride wore a winter-white, two-piece suit with black accessories.

The newlyweds are now making their home at 2650 Quadra Street.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson, Lethbridge, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. R. McLeod and family, Bellingham, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. F. Cornall, Mrs. D. Slawson, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs.

N. Harrod, Cowichan; Mr. and Mrs. J. Pepper, Sayward, and Mrs. E. Holgate, Bowser.

More Gift Ideas

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRAS

I imagine a considerable number of my regular readers will be heading downtown this week to get in some final licks on their Christmas shopping.

If they have any really keen gardeners on their shopping list, I warn them here and now that it isn't going to be easy to find a present which will really ring the bell.

One gadget I ran across last year which should make a most welcome gift is the Merry-Gro Greenhouse. This name is a bit off-base; they call the thing a greenhouse, but actually it is a plastic-covered propagating case just big enough to fit comfortably on a sunny window sill, 14½ inches long, 8 inches wide and 8 inches high, and it is an ideal container for starting seeds or rooting slips.

The dark green plastic tray that contains the soil or other growing medium is fitted with divider strips like those in an egg crate, and in this way the started plants can be taken out and transplanted without any root disturbance. There is an automatic watering device too—you just pour water in the outer reservoir and the gadget does the rest, and a rigid clear plastic bubble covers the whole thing like a greenhouse, maintaining high air humidity within.

The Merry-Gro is priced very reasonably at $3.98, and you can buy extra trays for $1.90 each—these have everything, except the plastic greenhouse bubble-like roof.

To my mind, an ideal set would be one complete Merry-Gro plus two spare tray sets, and in this way you could start a batch of seedlings or slips under the bubble, then when they are nicely up and growing strongly, you could shift the bubble to another tray and start a second batch of plants.

While the instructions call for the use of soil in the trays, I found it cleaner and more convenient to use vermiculite, perlite, or this new stuff they call Turf-Aid which looks like bits of broken brick but is actually a form of diatomaceous earth.

This is the best material I have run across for the rooting of slips, and used in a Merry-Gro in conjunction with a hormone rooting powder, I honestly believe you could grow roots on a billiard ball!

One gift which should delight the heart of any ardent gardener is an irrigating device which, coupled to the garden hose, will inject either plain water or a fertilizer solution deep into the ground directly to the roots of our shrubs, trees and plants.

There are several of these on the market; the one I use is called a Root-Aider, for it is of simpler construction than most of the other models, with fewer parts and easier to use.

It is a stainless steel tube, about three feet long, with a tapered, pointed tip at one end and a coupling for the hose on the other. The top is bent over slightly to provide a handle with a rubberized grip. The Root-Aider is as light as a walking stick, and with the hose pressure reduced to about half the normal flow, the water coming out the tip bores its own hole in the ground without any strenuous pushing at all.

Instead of plain water, it is possible to feed a fertilizer solution through the Root-Aider too. A little syphon gadget comes with it, attaching at the tap end of the hose, and with a rubber tube that dangles in a bucket of fertilizer, mixing the solution into the hose water at the rate of about one in 40.

If I remember correctly, this ingenious injecting device costs somewhere around $8, but I am finding that underground irrigation and feeding is solving so many garden problems for me that I wouldn't want to get along without it even if it cost triple the price.

ART BUCHWALD Reports New Teen-Age Horror

Girls Leash 'Steadies'

Teenageologists, the experts who spend their time studying the habits and mores of teenagers, have just come up with some more frightening information.

It appears the female of the species is taking over more and more as the head of the tribe, and teen-ageism is fast developing into a matriarchy.

A recent study reveals that the female teenager is slowly getting control of the purse strings of the teen-age male. The survey revealed that teen-age boys were turning over their allowances and earnings to their 'steady' girls.

Teen-age girls seem to have convinced their boy friends they can manage their money better and make it go farther.

"I have discovered," said Lester Rand (whose institute made the survey), "that some teen-agers even have joint bank accounts."

Rand also discovered that teen-age girls were putting their boy friends on budgets and deciding what they should buy in the way of clothes as well as luxuries.

"In many cases," Rand said, "the girls badger their boy friends into demanding larger allowances and wage increases. Girls also seem to hound unemployed lads into getting jobs so they can have more spending money."

The survey revealed that male taste in clothes, haircuts, and even automobiles was being dictated by the female teen-ager. "I don't know why, perhaps it's parental influence," Rand said, "but the female teen-ager is in the middle."

The extent of the influence can be easily dramatized by what one youth told Rand. "My girl wants me to be asleep by 11 and, since she lives next door, she checks my bedroom light to see if it is off."

Rand also discovered that teen-age girls actually select careers for their boy friends. One youth, who was on his way to becoming an accountant, changed over to law when his steady informed him she would never marry an accountant. Unfortunately, in this case, after he started law school, she got engaged to someone else.

The report also revealed that teen-age girls make the decisions on what films their boy friends will see, what records they will hear, and what television programs they will watch.

The so-called "teen-age market," which is said to be worth billions of dollars, is controlled almost entirely by the female, just as the grown-up market is controlled by her mother.

What does this all mean? Rand says that teen-age boys are much more lonely and insecure than teen-age girls.

They submit to all the indignities because they can't resist female flattery, and they are suckers for anyone who listens to their troubles.

It's almost impossible for a teen-age boy to resist a girl who pretends she has his interests at heart.

The tragedy is that, at the very moment teen-age boys are fighting to break away from parental control, they are meekly handing their hard-won victories over to their girl friends.

Rand concludes, "The North American husband of the future gives every indication of becoming completely home-broken. Most of the spade-work is being done now."

(Attention, teen-agers. When writing to protest this scurrilous column, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

JACK SMITH, Affluent Failure

The Three-Car Man

For years I have regarded the three-car family as a theoretical joke—a sickness toward which the human race seemed headed, but one it surely would never reach.

We are now a three-car family. I rarely see any of my vehicles. So I stepped out on the front porch to see what I had wrought. It made me shudder. I was now undeniably a major cause of the evils I cursed—smog and traffic.

I went back in the house to make a cup of coffee and brood about man's fate. I decided to shower and dress and go for a drive. I wanted to see if it was possible to gain any spiritual uplift from my material wealth.

When I finished dressing I found the house empty. I looked out the front window. All the cars were gone. It had happened in less than 15 minutes.

I tried to figure it out. I could account for one car. The Dodge. My wife had taken it to the laundromat. I remembered seeing her packing the wash baskets. There is always plenty of wash on Saturdays now. The boys bring theirs home from college. It helps preserve the home ties.

I was wondering what had become of the Renault and the Sunbeam when the doorbell rang. It was a young lady.

"I'm looking for Crises in History," she said.

"You've come to the right place," I said. "This place is one crisis after another."

"It's my history book," she explained. "Curt brought it home for me. I had a date."

I knew that probably made sense, if one wanted to sit down and go over it patiently. But I didn't want to cause another crisis. We found the Crises in History on the television set.

My wife was the first one home. "Where's the Sunbeam?" I asked her.

"Oh, Curt had a date. Last-ohm."

"Where's the Renault?"

"Doug took it homeback riding."

She drove back down the hill with the laundry bag. I was alone again, with a sense of having mismanaged my life.

Beatles in the Sun

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

If you want to know why all the hotels in Nassau are booked to capacity with young people from February 22, it could be because the Beatles start their new film there on that date. After several weeks in the sun, the Walter Shenson production moves to the Alps, in Switzerland, and then to London, where I hope to catch up with them—if not before.

It was Richard Burton who advised wife Elizabeth to wear that Balenciaga sari and not the evening pants she had ordered from the House of Guy Laroche for the big splashy opening of the new Lido show in Paris. Some women naturally look better in a sari, Elizabeth does. The invitations read, "evening slacks only." And that's too dictatorial in any language. Liz also brought her special hairdresser, the famous Alexandre, to the party, to keep her high hair-do high.

How Young Are You?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Many people know how old they feel—but not how young they are.

But there are tests for youth.

For example, you're still young, at least by the spirit's calendar, if—

You spend more time planning for tomorrow than remembering yesterday.

The antics of the Beatles and their admirers amuse you more than they depress you.

When you see a small group of children playing hopscotch, you have a secret impulse to join the game.

You can win the confidence of (teen-agers, and not think their dreams much more foolish than your own.

In a real pinch you are willing to lend an acquaintance more money than you believe you really can afford.

You can buy a new suit without boring the salesman about how much more expensive clothes are now than when you were a boy.

When you open a package, you automatically throw the string away instead of winding it into a small ball and putting it into a drawer.

At least once during the last year you've read a trashy novel that was a waste of time—but you enjoyed it anyway.

Every now and then you ponder whether it wouldn't still be a good idea to grow a moustache or a beard.

The fringe benefits of your present position, such as seniority, insurance and pension programs, haven't made you a prisoner. You'd still jump to another job if you found one that was more exciting.

It is still possible for you to stay up after midnight without worrying about how terrible you'll feel in the morning.

Although you have several bad habits you know you ought to give up, there are a few others you have a hankering to acquire.

City Hall Hears World Carols

Elementary school, choir from McKenzie and Doncaster sang carols from three different countries in the council chamber area at new city hall Tuesday.

In the second concert of a week-long series which may become a Christmas tradition at city hall, the children were joined by members of the staff to sing songs from old France, Mexico and England.

Ronald Berod conducted the McKenzie choir and Miss Kaye Parnell accompanied. Doncaster was conducted by Mrs. Veronica Frey, and Mrs. E. M. Milley played the accompaniment.

Uplands elementary school choir will sing at city hall today. Mrs. Lorna Griffiths will direct and Mrs. Donna Denike accompany.

Lampson and Tolmie elementary schools will sing on Thursday, and Glanford and Frank Hobbs on Friday.

TV TALK

By BRUCE LOWTHER

We're a little late, folks, but here's the story of the CBS program shuffle designed to combat the top-rated show of all, NBC's Bonanza at 9 Sunday nights.

The original plan was to put Danny Thomas reruns and unused episodes of last summer's Celebrity Game. Later CBS dropped those two and chose For the People, a one-hour drama starring William Shatner as a prosecutor. It begins Jan. 24, with Royal Ballet and reruns of Fred Astaire specials each Sunday until then.

Joey Bishop moves to Tuesday and My Living Doll goes to Wednesday. The latter and Mr. Ed replace CBS Reports which in turn replaces Slattery's People on Mondays. Slattery shifts to Friday, replacing The Reporter, which dies this Friday. Channels 7 and 12 may schedule Bishop on other days—word is awaited.

While we're catching up on the news, it should be reported that the Nielsen ratings people have decided to drop many of the families with young children it added to its survey last September after Congress demanded changes. The families put ABC in a neck-and-neck race with CBS; their disappearance should help CBS—and hurt the companies who bought more than $25,000,000 worth of ABC shows in the meantime.

Water Rationing Ahead For Prairie Farmlands

By ALLEN SACKMANN

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Water, the life of southern Alberta's expanding $170,000,000 agriculture industry, one day may restrict its growth.

Experts look to the day when water will be rationed to irrigation farmers as carefully as gasoline is metered into the family automobile.

J. H. Graham, manager of the St. Mary and Milk Rivers Development Association (SARM), says: "We'll run out of water long before we run out of land" for irrigation.

'UNDER DITCH'

More than 750,000 acres are "under the ditch" and the acreage increases at a rate of five to 10 per cent a year. Experts plan to extend irrigation to 200,000 acres of dry land.

Sugar beets, vegetables, cereal crops and ranching flourish on land that, before irrigation, forced many pioneers into heartbreak.

GIANT WEB

The water, from six rivers on the eastern slopes of the Canadian Rockies, flows into a giant web of irrigation ditches 370 miles eastward to Medicine Hat, transforming the dusty soil into one of the richest agricultural areas in Canada.

More than 7,500 farmers share in the wealth generated by the water and raise 20 per cent of Alberta's gross agricultural product on four per cent of the arable land.

TAP LAST SOURCE

The Waterton Dam, on the Waterton River in southwestern Alberta, will be tapping the last source of water when it is completed. When it and other river systems are completely harnessed, water will be a premium commodity for production of sugar beets and vegetables which couldn't be grown without irrigation.

How important is water? It takes 30,000 gallons to grow a bushel of wheat and 500,000 gallons to raise a ton of hay. The average householder uses 45,000 gallons of water a year, equivalent to the requirements for 1½ bushels of wheat.

RATES VARY

Farmers spend up to $100 an acre to prepare their land for irrigation. Water is sold to them at varying rates. The SARM, for example, charges $3 an acre to deliver the water to fields of 3,000 farmers.

Wally Foss, Prairie Farm Rehabilitation official at Lethbridge, says the day is coming when farmers will be paying a lot more for their water and buying it on an acre-foot basis. Already farmers are using new techniques and new irrigation equipment to make better use of the water. The old-fashioned flood irrigation is giving way to controlled border dikes and sprinkler systems.

PIPE ROTATES

Two new pieces of equipment have appeared during the last year. One is a self-propelled system that eliminates the back-breaking work of loading and unloading pipe associated with the conventional system that has the pipe strung along the ground. Not only does it cut moving time in half but makes for more even distribution of the water.

Another system has the water source in the middle of the field with pipe connected to a pivot. Through a series of plungers, driven by water, the pipe rotates to water the field evenly without wastage.

The systems cost about $20,000 each.

Land is also being leveled to make more of it available for irrigation and make better use of the water. Farmers strip off the top soil and then spread it over the leveled ground—at a cost of $15 to $100 an acre.

Another advance that saves money for some farmers, although it has no effect on water consumption, is the use of natural gas for pumping water across the fields. Farmers have found pumping costs cut by half with the use of the cheap natural gas.

While the limitations of water availability will eventually be felt on expansion of irrigation, farmers in the area haven't tapped the full potential of their land.

Dr. I. L. Nonnecke of the Lethbridge Research Station says: "We haven't even scratched the surface of the area's potential."

Many vegetable crops, for example, could be raised on a wider scale to add to the diversification of the area.

Amateur Artists Receive Expert Help

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—The work of high school artists gets professional display at an unusual Toronto art gallery.

Showcase for the High-Art Foundation, the gallery is a non-profit experiment aimed at encouraging young artists and giving them practical help.

The work of the foundation has been centred in Toronto since its founding 20 months ago, but it has a federal charter and the hope is that it will eventually spread across Canada.

Ten paintings by its young proteges were shown in an international exhibit in Tokyo in October. And the foundation has awarded its first two scholarships—one to a painter and one to a sculptor—and has made other awards to exhibitors.

Founder of the High-Art Foundation, Mrs. H. Hunter Hunter of Toronto, art collector, art authenticator and former head of the conservation department of the National Gallery in Ottawa.

Mrs. Hunter says it was a small thing that prompted her to start the foundation.

"It was something I read—that Toronto was the lowest contributor to the arts per capita in the Americas."

"There is a need for encouragement in the fine arts, and particularly in sculpture, which I have always felt was a forgotten art."

TALENT LOST

She says too much young talent was being lost for lack of opportunity to develop, partly because of a lack of scholarships at the high school graduation level.

The first two foundation scholarships are valued at about $600. They cover school fees plus such things as lunches, carfare, locker fees and materials.

Mrs. Hunter says the scholarships are based on what a specific student needs, and therefore may vary from case to case.

STUDY ABROAD
If a student does well his scholarship will be extended, even to cover study abroad, she says.

The first two students are attending the Ontario College of Art here, but "after this year they may study anywhere in the world and we will still pay the whole shot."

Most of the foundation's funds to date have come from Mrs. Hunter personally—she wanted to be sure the idea would work before asking others to contribute—but now she says contributions will be gratefully accepted from industry or private donors. Because of the foundation's federal charter, they are tax-exempt.

PICKED BY STUDENTS
Mrs. Hunter says the foundation incorporates several novel ideas. For one thing, the students themselves choose the paintings to be exhibited. The gallery has seven exhibitions of work from Grade 12 and 13 students representing all Toronto city schools.

"Then students volunteered to man the gallery so they would hear unbiased comment, and it has taught them." During the first 18 months 15,000 visitors signed the gallery guest book.

TRAVEL CANADA
Mrs. Hunter and other foundation representatives intend to visit other parts of Canada to talk about the work it is doing. And some award-winning paintings and sculptures are being kept for eventual showing to students and teachers around the country.

"In time, I think, each province will have to have its own gallery to show in."

Beale Rhythm Fills Tent

Guitars on Cyprus

Guards Keep Peace, Beat

By ALAN WALKER

NICOSIA (CP)—Rifles, mess kits, guitars, pistols... wait a minute! Guitars? Hardly routine gear for war.

It's true, though. Enough instruments to equip a rock 'n' roll group flew more than 5,000 miles from Canada to Cyprus as official equipment for the Canadian Guards.

GOOD FOR MORALE

Guardsman Gene Scott, 19, of Hamilton smacked out a steady beat on his full set of drums at a recent platoon party deep in the Kyrenia hills in the midst of hostile Greek and Turkish-Cypriot positions.

Guardsmen and officers danced the Twist as Beale music crashed inside a khaki tent over dusty gravel.

In front of Scott four soldiers plucked electric guitars.

LEADS GROUP

Pte. John Mansfield, 27, of Westfield, N.S., is the leader of the Fireflies' group. It started in Germany a year or so ago when the Guards were stationed there with the NATO contingent.

All the musicians do full duty with the United Nations peace-keeping force here so they don't get time to practice. "These are our precious," Pte. Mansfield said with a grin.

The musicians took a break and gathered around to sip beer. Gdsm. Neil Jarvis, 26, of Weymouth, N.S., plays lead guitar.

Gdsm. Ron Surette, 21, of Moncton, N.B., backs Jarvis up with another guitar. Gdsm. Al Morton, 26, of Yarmouth, N.S., plays bass guitar.

"Gene's the odd man out, so to speak," Pte. Mansfield said, pointing to the drummer.

MEMORIZE TUNES

"All the rest of us come from down east, but we like him anyway."

None of them reads music and they memorize tunes off records. They love the Beatles and play and sing a lot of their songs.

The men clamored for more music to back up a beer-drinking contest so the five musicians returned to their amplifiers. They played and sang far into the night.

HAS SOME WRITERS

The battalion boasts two song writers, too. Guardsmen Tony White, 21, of London, Ont., and Philip Cheverie, 24, of Sauris, P.E.I., plan to teach some of their music to the Fireflies.

"We can't write the music down," Gdsm. Cheverie said, "but we've got the words all figured out and I have a sort of a tune in my head."

'BESIDES...'

Keeping peace can be boring for soldiers used to battle situations so the battalion officers encourage get-togethers where the men can unwind. A platoon from No. 2 Company was due to change position to its command post, Col. Bob Watson, 27, of Hespeler, Ont., hastily organized a party. "It's as good an excuse as any," he said. And then added the puzzling remark:

"Besides, it's Wednesday night."

Too Much Bathing Washes Out Oils, Causes Winter Itch

CHICAGO (AP)—Itchy? Stop bathing, says a University of Illinois skin doctor.

The reason, he says, is that too much soap and water wash away the skin's protective oils.

Americans have "the crazy notion that a daily bath is necessary for good health," said Dr. Frederick J. Szymanski, an associate professor of dermatology.

He said pruritis hiemalis—winter itch—is aggravated by soap and water. The condition can keep a person scratching through May. In severe cases it covers the body, he said, causing scaly skin and interfering with sleep.

"One could drink olive oil by the gallon each day without affecting the lubricating quality of the skin oil that has been washed away," Dr. Szymanski said.

He conceded he was fighting a losing battle.

"Long ago I gave up preaching for less bathing," he said.

"This is an unpopular suggestion and there is no use trying to change habits of our patients."

If you must bathe, use a superfatted soap which doesn't dry the skin as much. Other aids include skin lotion and a humidifier to keep indoor air moist.

1854 Indian Treaty Upheld

Special to the Colonist
Nanaimo district Indians have won a second court battle in their fight for the right to hunt game on Crown lands out of season—but the case is going to the Supreme Court of Canada. The B.C. Court of Appeal ruled Tuesday in Vancouver an 1854 treaty gives the right to the Indians. A written judgment by three of the five justices said the Indians have the right under a treaty covering the sale of Indian land to the Hudson's Bay Company.

But Nanaimo lawyer D. M. Omliff, crown prosecutor when the case was in magistrate's and county courts, said the attorney-general's department informed him Tuesday afternoon the Crown will appeal to the Supreme Court in Ottawa.

The land was sold to the Salish tribe, which was given the perpetual right to hunt for food over the unoccupied lands within their ancient tribal hunting grounds. The case began when Clifford White and David Bob were found in possession of six deer shot in July, 1963, on Mount Benson near Nanaimo. They were convicted in magistrate's court on a charge of possession of game during the closed season. But County Court Judge A. H. J. Swensky upset the conviction on appeal, in effect upholding the ancient treaty rights.

The Crown appealed to the Court of Appeal and its arguments were rejected by Justices T. G. Norris, H. W. Davey and H. J. Sullivan.

Justices A. E. Lord and F. A. Sheppard dissented.

The Crown contended the treaty conferred no hunting rights and the document was not actually a treaty.

In the judgment Mr. Justice Davey said the charter granting Vancouver Island to the Hudson's Bay Co. charged the company with settlement and colonization of that island.

It was clearly part of the imperial policy to head off American settlement of the territory and in that sense the company was an instrument of imperial policy.

It was also the longstanding policy of the imperial government and the company that the Crown or the HBC should buy Indian lands for settlement by white colonists.

The judge said he had no doubt Parliament intended the word treaty in Section 87 of the Indian Act to include all such agreements.

This being the case, he said, Section 87 does not extend the general provisions of the Game Act to the Indians in the exercise of their hunting rights over the lands in question.

The judgment also said it was the plain policy of the British North America Act to vest legislative control over Indian affairs generally in one central authority, Parliament.

"In pursuance of that policy, many agreements, some very formal, others informal, were made with various bands and tribes of Indians for the purchase of their lands. These agreements frequently conferred upon the grantors hunting rights over the unoccupied lands so sold."

"Considering the relationship between the Crown and the Hudson's Bay Company in the colonization of this country, and the imperial and corporate policies reflected in those agreements, I cannot regard Exhibit 6 (the treaty) as a mere agreement for the sale of land made between a private vendor and a private purchaser."

"In my opinion," Mr. Justice Davey said, "their regular rights of hunting and fishing over their ancient hunting grounds, arising under the agreements by which they collectively sold their ancient lands, are Indian affairs over which Parliament has exclusive legislative authority, and only Parliament can derogate from those rights."

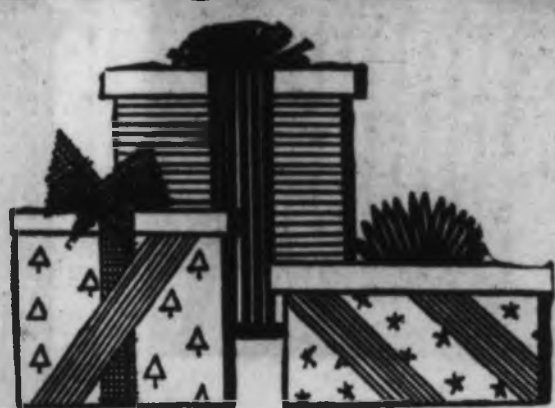

As a result, he said, the right of two Indians to hunt the lands in question are preserved by the Indian Act and remain unimpaired by the Game Act and they were therefore rightfully in possession of the deer carcasses.

Commonwealth Flag

Red Ensign Returns To Disrupt Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Displaced by the Commons as Canada's national flag only hours earlier, the Canadian Red Ensign was ushered in again by the Progressive Conservatives Tuesday as a candidate for the position of Commonwealth flag.

The move was proposed by Hugh John Flemming (PC—Victoria-Carleton) as an amendment to the special committee recommendation to make the Union Jack represent Canada's association with the Commonwealth.

The debate picked up where the frazzled Commons left off at 2:15 a.m. EST with Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker glowering across the floor at one another and hurling taunts.

The prime minister said it is essential for the Conservatives to be proposing the Canadian Red Ensign as the Commonwealth flag at the same time as they put forth the position that there should be only one flag.

Liberal whip James E. Walker said there will be a free vote on the motion for Liberal.

Mr. Pearson upheld the need for symbols representing the various levels of association for Canada. The best flag for that purpose was the Union Jack because it had no official Canadian status since 1945 when an order-in-council made the Ensign the provisional flag.

The fact that the Ensign had been the national flag was the precise reason why it should not be kept on now that the Commons has approved a red-and-white maple leaf flag for Canada.

The Union Jack also had the advantage of being the royal flag.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker wanted to know whether there had been any consultation with the Queen on making the Union Jack a symbol for the Commonwealth.

Mr. Pearson repeated earlier statements that the Queen had been informed but not consulted. He said Mr. Diefenbaker knew full well it would be unconstitutional to ask the Queen's advice.

"He (Mr. Diefenbaker) would be accusing us of dragging the Crown into politics," said Mr. Pearson.

There was a series of exchanges between Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker with the opposition leader rising repeatedly to ask questions.

When Mr. Pearson refused to be interrupted until the end of his speech and was supported by Speaker Alan Macnaughton, Mr. Diefenbaker accused the Speaker of applying the rules differently in favor of the prime minister than he had when the leader of the opposition spoke last week.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Diefenbaker had spoken for 1½ hours without being interrupted. Now he was trying to "browbeat the chair."

David Pugh (PC—Okanagan-Boundary) said the motion for the adopting of the Union Jack is "just one more attempt to wipe the Red Ensign off the face of the map." There was no evidence to suggest that the people of Canada wanted a second flag, and if Parliament approves a distinctive flag that "should be good enough for all purposes." The maple leaf flag recommendation is before the Senate.

MORE APPROPRIATE

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) also supported the Conservative amendment. The Red Ensign would be a more appropriate Canadian symbol for Commonwealth membership than the Union Jack. Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) favored the amendment. He said some people in Britain rather disliked the idea that "we're trying to steal their flag."

Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton-Strathcona) indicated he would vote against the Conservative amendment and the main motion.

NO SENSE

He said that if the maple leaf flag is to become the symbol it should be, no other flag should be raised to divide that respect. It didn't make sense to say the maple leaf flag stands for unity and then turn around and introduce another flag.

"How can we build up the flag adopted in this House last night if we're going to say at the outset: 'It doesn't stand for anything.'"

Report Public —Mooney

Chairman of the Capital Region Planning Commission, Ald. Millard Mooney, does not agree with Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis that a news blackout should be imposed on a vital area traffic study expected Jan. 12.

"It seems to me that when it is received by the various councils it should then become a public matter," said Ald. Mooney. "Certainly there will be nothing in it to hide, important though it is."

In a letter to municipal councils in the area Reeve Curtis suggested that councils should have a week to study the area traffic report which has been prepared by a firm of experts under agency of the regional planning commission.

It will be an important report and there may be some things council wishes to study before releasing it to the press, the reeve said.

Lively Flag Issue Swings to Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—Hard on the heels of its stormy passage through the Commons, the recommendation for a red-and-white maple leaf flag for Canada sparked a lively debate in the Senate Tuesday.

The flag design recommended by an all-party Commons committee immediately ran into an amendment proposed by a Conservative senator that would scrap the design approved in the Commons after 33 days of flag debate. Closure was applied by the government to get the design through the Commons early Tuesday.

SUSPEND ACTION

Senator Gratien O'Leary, an Ottawa Conservative, proposed the amendment, suggesting the government suspend further action on the flag and allow a period for the public and Parliament to reach agreement on a flag incorporating the symbols of Canada's two founding races.

Thirty one of the 33 Progressive Conservative senators were on hand for the debate. Other party standings in the 105-seat upper house are Liberals 61, Independent two, Independent Liberal one and vacant five.

Sensor John Connolly, government leader in the Senate, introduced a resolution that the Senate concur in the decision of the Commons that a flag with a single red maple leaf on a white ground flanked by red panels be the national flag.

"It is a beautiful flag. It is a symbol around which we can build our hopes and in which we can centre our pride," he said.

Senator O'Leary said that as a native of Quebec he refused to believe that the majority of the people of Quebec want to tear the last vestige of the Union Jack symbol from the Canadian flag.

Not only did the proposed flag remove the British contribution "but it leaves off the things, the glorious things, which the French discoverers and founders of this country contributed."

Senator O'Leary said he appealed to all parties to bury their differences over the flag and sit down and work out a design which will be acceptable to most Canadians. A flag should unite a country, not divide it.

NOT POSSIBLE

Senator Cameron (Ind L—Alberta) said it never would be possible to get unanimity on a flag design. "You could never achieve a greater measure of unanimity than we have today. My feeling is that 65 to 75 per cent of the Canadian people want this distinctive Canadian flag."

Snow Solves City Burglary

Police used the elements to help in the investigation of a break and enter at McDonald's Bakery, 675 Burnside, Tuesday night.

City detective Walter Calwell and dogmaster George Barr followed footprints in the snow leading from the back of the bakery through several yards and over two fences.

Dets. Calwell and Ivan Purdy staked out a house and later a 15-year-old boy was taken in for questioning and arrested on a charge of breaking and entering and theft.

Detectives found large bolts on the front door of the bakery had been forced and a back door had been broken down when the thieves left the building.

A cash register containing $15 was taken from the store.

Food Stall Operator 'Divides' Tribute

After years of helping needy Victorians, tribute has been paid to Mrs. E. E. Harper.

But, typically, she will share her reward with those less fortunate than herself.

Mrs. Harper will take 100 children of welfare recipients to Ice Capades Thursday night as well as receiving a sweater, hockey tickets, dinner for two and a corsage.

The tickets and other prizes were to be awarded in a local radio station contest.

But Mrs. Sylvia Lyons, 2962 Milgrove Street, wrote to the radio station asking that the prizes be turned over to Mrs. Harper because she had given so much of her time to help others in the community.

'WONDERFUL'
Each month Mrs. Harper operates a food stall to distribute food to needy welfare families.

"I think it's just wonderful," Mrs. Harper said on hearing the good news. "I'm overwhelmed."

"I never in my life expected anyone to thank me. I only operate food stalls because it gives me a warm feeling to help others."

HARD TIME
Mrs. Harper said most of the families were too poor to send their children to the show.

"Most of them have a hard time just clothing and feeding the children," she added.

La Notte

Fine Foreign Film Ends Here Tonight

By IAN STREET

Film fans in Victoria have a rare opportunity to see one of the recent works of the Italian director Michelangelo Antonioni.

La Notte, or The Night, as it is being billed here, is booked for three nights starting Monday at the Atlas.

That means tonight is the last chance to see this fine film by one of the acknowledged modern masters of the cinema.

It's not light entertainment fare, but I found Antonioni's treatment of the theme of emptiness in modern-day life engrossing.

The black and white photography is superb and the story moves effortlessly. It's not by any means unrelieved gloom. The Italian warmth and humor break through on several occasions.

If you are interested in the cinema, don't miss this one. Box office idol Marcello Mastroianni stars with Jeanne Moreau.

Bribe Offer Sworn

OTTAWA (CP)—Pierre Lamontagne, 29-year-old Montreal lawyer, swore Tuesday he was subjected to two months of pressure, including a $20,000 bribe, by federal ministerial aides, a Liberal MP and others to agree to the granting of bail in a narcotics case.

The case is that of Lucien Rivard of Montreal, wanted in the United States on a narcotics smuggling charge which states Rivard is linked with a Mafia-controlled international dope ring.

IN PRISON

Rivard was arrested in Montreal June 18, and still is in Boreaux Jail there pending decision on an extradition application by the United States.

Mr. Lamontagne, who is a hollow-eyed, testified he had been told Rivard was a contributor to the Liberal party and his (Rivard's) help might soon be needed in a federal election.

He spent 2 1/2 hours on the witness stand before a judicial inquiry headed by Chief Justice Frederic Doherty of the Quebec Superior Court. The federal cabinet ordered the inquiry into allegations of bribery and coercion against ministerial aides and the handling of these allegations by Justice Minister Fauriol.

OFFERED $20,000

Mr. Lamontagne, who is acting for the U.S. government in trying to have Rivard extradited to the U.S., said he was offered a $20,000 bribe by his "close friend," Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay.

He said the bribe offer was made on the evening of July 14 in the Commons office of Mr. Tremblay but that the minister "scheduled to testify later" wasn't present.

He identified Denis as the

Competition Fears Stymied B.C. Bank

By IAN STREET

Fear of competition from a Vancouver-based bank prompted the senate to reject B.C.'s bank application, Premier Bennett said here Tuesday.

He said the real reason behind the defeat of the bank bill by the senate committee had little to do with government participation.

"It appears they are anxious to keep financial control in Canada in the hands of the eastern establishment," the premier said.

NET OBJECTIONS

"(The senate) is opposed to a large bank with headquarters in Vancouver."

Mr. Bennett told a luncheon audience B.C. has met "every single objection" raised by senators during the banking committee hearings.

"We have agreed to drop our original 25 per cent participation to 10 per cent or less; we have agreed not to invest in the bank at all until the Bank Act is revised early next year," he said.

WILL FIGHT

Mr. Bennett said his government does not expect to get approval from Ottawa easily and would fight for the bank as it had done successfully for the Peace and Columbia power projects.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner flew east for Monday's senate committee hearing to make a fruitless last-minute compromise proposal.

By BOB PETHICK

Greater Victoria's first storm this winter caught rush-hour traffic in an icy grip Tuesday, causing one serious accident and traffic tie-ups all over the area.

A light fall of snow—three-tenths of an inch—made roads icy and treacherous, even more dangerous than if there had been a heavier snowfall.

Elsewhere in the Vancouver Island area temperatures plunged as low as eight degrees, at Tofino, but the only report of heavy snow followed a near-blizzard which dumped five inches or more on Salt Spring and other Gulf Islands.

FERRIES STOPPED

High winds all day slowed Swartz Bay-Taswanassen and Nanaimo-Vancouver ferries and stopped many Gulf Island ferry runs and flights out of Nanaimo. Patricia Bay flights were not affected.

One report said few meals were served on Swartz Bay-Taswanassen ferries after dishes broke on an early crossing.

Thermometers fell to 12 degrees in Victoria and Nanaimo, 14 in the Albernis and 15 at Duncan. Only light snow fell and strong winds were lacking in the last three areas plus Ladysmith and the Comox Valley.

ICY ROADS

Roads were described as "extremely icy" everywhere.

In Greater Victoria, Mrs. Irene Evans of 2715 Maddison and her son Robert were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with minor injuries when a Mrs. Evans' car went out of control and dropped down a 30-foot embankment on the Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillicum. The car was heavily damaged.

The accident occurred where new paving goes to the roadside, leaving practically no shoulder.

POLICE BUSY

Traffic pileup reports started flooding police department switchboards from 5 p.m. on, as busy intersections became icy and cars stood still with their wheels spinning on the change of the lights.

Wind gusting up to 42 miles an hour hit the city. The official temperature at Gonzales at 8 p.m. had dropped to 16 degrees.

Weatherman William Mackie predicted a high of 32 degrees today with skies mainly clear, apart from the occasional snow shower.

CHAINS ON

At 6 p.m. the fire departments in the area elected to put on chains.

Also at 6 p.m. cars were six deep on the Patricia Bay Highway at Cemetery Hill. At 6:45 p.m. there was a jam-up of trucks on Royal Oak Avenue and the Patricia Bay Highway.

The mess was finally sorted out and Saanich police reported the highway clear but treacherous at 8 p.m.

BOTTLENECK

A typical bottleneck was the three-way traffic light at Hillside and Shelbourne where only one or two cars were able to cross at the change of a light. One motorist said cars were backed up on Shelbourne from Hillside to Haultain.

City, municipal and provincial work crews turned out in force in an effort to salt down well-travelled roads and were to work well into the night.

But the high winds blew away salt and sand in some places almost as soon as it was spread.

AVOID HILLS

Good advice for today by a veteran traffic officer was "Wherever possible avoid hills."

Four chimney fires, two in the city, one in Saanich and one in View Royal, were extinguished by Greater Victoria fire departments.

Record Snow Buries Rupert

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—More snow is forecast for this northern city still struggling with the effects of a six-day snowfall last week which left 21 inches on the ground.

The weather was clear and cold Tuesday but the city was still spreading record amounts of snow removal.

Old timers said there has been nothing like the present weather since about 1917. Houses have collapsed under the weight of snow.

Elsewhere in the north, temperatures stood at 23 below in the Smithers-Hazelton region, and 18 below in Prince George as cold air covered the entire Prairies. Snow, close to the Yukon border, had 67 below.

Forecasters said coastal areas will likely have more snow after about 24 hours, but the interior should be snow-free for a day or two.

At least one person died in the vicious blizzard that combined near-record low temperatures and roaring north winds Monday night and Tuesday in Alberta. Schools closed, travel was virtually abandoned and people were warned to stay indoors.

One of Worst Blizzards Mauls, Buries Prairies

One of the worst blizzards in history loosened its grip slightly on Alberta Tuesday night but pounded Saskatchewan with gale-like winds, plummeting temperatures and swirling snow.

Most of southwestern Saskatchewan was without electricity for two hours Tuesday night when electrical wires were blown together, causing a short circuit. Temperatures were 28 below zero and winds reached 63 miles an hour.

Meanwhile, strong winds continued to swirl eddies of snow around Alberta late Tuesday—later than we expected," said weather officials.

In Edmonton, postal officials called a halt to home mail delivery at noon, milkmen were hours behind on their routes, cab companies were swamped with calls and towing companies couldn't meet the demand.

In Calgary, a hospital official warned residents not to attempt to walk more than four blocks. Some milkmen were still on their routes at midnight and others couldn't complete their routes.

The Pension

Costs Will Rise One Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian prices and labor costs could be expected to rise by about one per cent with the launching of the Canada Pension Plan and its Quebec counterpart, says a government economic report.

The report, last major piece of documentation on the proposal, was outlined to the parliamentary pensions committee Tuesday by R. B. Bryce, deputy finance minister. It goes much deeper than the government white paper published last summer.

These are the major conclusions of the study:

Over-all economic effects of the pension plan on the relationships between the business, consumer and government sectors of the economy "are on a scale which is modest."

"The beginning of the pension system probably would give rise to modest price increases, perhaps of the order of one per cent," but it "should not distort significantly the structure of costs or prices or seriously impair the capability of businesses to generate new funds for replacement or expansion."

Employers, required to contribute to the plan, would see their labor costs go up by "something in the order of one per cent" but "this should not seriously impair the ability of Canadian business to compete with producers outside of Canada."

Mr. Bryce said that in order to avoid minimizing the economic effects, the study was based on the actuary's "high cost" estimates, which are based on assumptions of low immigration and low birth rates. These estimates also assume an annual four per cent increase in average earnings and price increases of 1 1/2 per cent a year until 1975 and two per cent annually thereafter.

Complex Plan Will Hit Market, Business

By STEPHEN VITUNSKI

First of a Series

The Canada Pension Plan has been described as the most complex piece of legislation brought before Parliament since Confederation.

It not only will affect every citizen of this country individually, but on a combined basis as well.

Politically it involves governments at both the provincial and federal level. It will have a marked effect on private pension plans and employer-employee arrangements for payments. It will affect securities markets and personal savings.

Fourth Version

Some weeks ago, parliament gave second reading to Bill C136, the fourth version of the Canada Pension Plan. Now, it's before a 36-man Parliamentary committee composed of 24 MPs and 12 Senators.

Although further revisions may emanate from these hearings, the feeling is that the government has just about run out of concessions and will hold the line pretty close to the status quo.

To ensure portability, the federal government has had to come to terms with the provincial governments.

Fishing Union Secretary:

Coast Guard Ships Can't Do the Job

VANCOUVER (CP)—Stan Stanton, secretary of the Pacific Coast Trollers Association, said Wednesday the Canadian Coast Guard is of little use in rough-weather emergencies on the open Pacific.

"The cutters Ready and Racer can buck out into weather but once they have arrived at the scene they can't stand by and work," he said in an interview.

"They are a legend but are simply not up to the job."

He said the association has made several applications to the department of transport in Ottawa, seeking a boat that could patrol the open waters off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

He said the association is trying to interest insurance companies in supporting the fishermen in their bid for a larger coast guard vessel that could patrol the area.

Husband in Jail

House Without Dolls A Sad Sight to See

It was sad to see—a home with four girls and not one doll.

"They all want dolls for Christmas," said the mother whose husband is in jail.

"This is the first time he has been in jail, but the longest time he has been at home in the last seven years is for six months."

The boy peddled by in a pair of novel-looking slippers. "I made those slippers with some extra wool I had," the mother said. "I can give them little things like that for Christmas—clothes or something they really need."

To make possible some little extras, a once-in-a-year treat, for those whose day-in, day-out existence is one of "getting by," The Daily Colonist started the 500 Fund eight years ago.

The public is invited to send in contributions. All the money that will be received up to 5 p.m. next Tuesday will be divided 500 ways and a cheque sent out to the 500 most needy in time for Christmas.

"Enclosed please find three cheques for $1 each. This money is from our sons' bank accounts and is being donated to your fund instead of their buying each other Christmas gifts this year," said a letter received this week.

The address for donations is: The Colonist 500 Fund, The Daily Colonist, 2831 Douglas. List of donations appears on Page 3.

Late Sittings Scheduled

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate will sit afternoons and evenings today and Thursday in an effort to complete its debate on the red maple leaf flag design.

Senator John Connolly, government leader in the upper house, said he hopes, however, that the debate can be completed by 10 o'clock tonight.

Big Response to Duncan Fire

Many Items Still Needed For Burned-Out Family

By JEAN BAIN

DUNCAN—Help is pouring in for Richard and Marlene Rowlinson and their two daughters, who lost everything but the clothing on their backs and one bed when fire Sunday destroyed their home at 66 Coronation.

Many more items are needed—it takes more than a day to outfit a family—but the list of donations is already impressive. The Red Cross office in Vancouver, notified Monday by local disaster chairman Mrs. Ivan Lobbyn, sent blankets and bedding Tuesday morning. The Duncan branch will outfit Mrs. Rowlinson with warm clothing today.

CLOTHING, DISHES
Individual gifts have included clothing, shoes, rubbers, and some toys for Penny, 8, and Vicky, five months; a dining room suite, a chesterfield, a crib, dishes, other bedding, a large bed and a mattress.

Commercial Hotel employee Paul Robert, a friend of the family who started a helping campaign, said Tuesday a table and chairs have been promised.

Christmas presents have also started coming in for the family. So far there is a doll for Penny, a toy for Vicky and two gifts for their parents.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS
The first struck one day after the Rowlinsons travelled to Victoria to buy all their presents. Everything was lost.

Both parents still need clothing. Mrs. Dobbins said Mrs. Rowlinson takes about a size 14 and Penny takes a size 10. Vicky also needs clothing and takes sizes from one year to 18 months.

More dishes and kitchen equipment are required and a bed is needed for Penny.

FUND STARTED
Mr. Robert has started a fund at the hotel and hopes to have at least $100 by Christmas. He will ask district grocery stores if vouchers for food can be given to the Rowlinsons.

Collection depots for gifts are at the Chamber of Commerce building on the highway, the Cowichan Leader office at 151 Craig, Hank's Hideaway at 50 Station and the Commercial Hotel lobby. Information about needs and pickup service can be arranged by phoning 746-7642 or 746-5041.

Mr. Rowlinson, a bricklayer's helper at the Crofton mill construction, has a car. A real estate firm has found a home for the family about three miles north of here but the Rowlinsons are staying in a hotel until heat and furniture are arranged.

Crown Hunting Rights

Indians Win Round Two But Supreme Court Next

Special to the Colonist

Nanaimo district Indians have won a second court battle in their fight for the right to hunt game on Crown lands out of season—but the case is going to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The B.C. Court of Appeal ruled Tuesday in Vancouver an 1854 treaty gives the right to the Indians. A written judgment by three of the five justices said the Indians have the right under a treaty covering the sale of Indian land to the Hudson's Bay Company.

But Nanaimo lawyer D. M. Cumliffe, crown prosecutor when the case was in magistrate's and county courts, said the attorney-general's department informed him Tuesday afternoon the Crown will appeal to the Supreme Court in Ottawa.

The land was sold to the Sallequon tribe, which was given the perpetual right to hunt for food over the unoccupied lands within their ancient tribal hunting grounds.

The case began when Clifford White and David Bob were found in possession of six deer shot in July, 1963, on Mount Benson near Nanaimo.

They were convicted in magistrate's court on a charge of possession of game during the closed season. But County Court Judge A. H. J. Swencinsky upset the conviction on appeal, in effect upholding the ancient treaty rights.

Arguments Rejected

The Crown appealed to the Court of Appeal and its arguments were rejected by Justices T. G. Norris, H. W. Davey and H. J. Sullivan.

Justices A. E. Lord and F. A. Sheppard dissented.

The Crown contended the treaty conferred no hunting rights and the document was not actually a treaty.

In the judgment Mr. Justice Davey said the charter granting Vancouver Island to the Hudson's Bay Co. charged the company with settlement and colonization of that island.

It was clearly part of the imperial policy to head off American settlement of the territory and in that sense the company was an instrument of imperial policy.

It was also the longstanding policy of the imperial government and the company that the Crown or the HBC should buy Indian lands for settlement by white colonists.

The judge said he had no doubt Parliament intended the word treaty in Section 87 of the Indian Act to include all such agreements.

This being the case, he said, Section 87 does not extend the general provisions of the Game Act to the Indians in the exercise of their hunting rights over the lands in question.

Central Authority

The judgment also said it was the plain policy of the British North America Act to vest legislative control over Indian affairs generally in one central authority, Parliament.

"In pursuance of that policy, many agreements, some very formal, others informal, were made with various bands and tribes of Indians for the purchase of their lands. These agreements frequently conferred upon the grantors hunting rights over the unoccupied lands so sold."

"Considering the relationship between the Crown and the Hudson's Bay Company in the colonization of this country, and the imperial and corporate policies reflected in those agreements, I cannot regard Exhibit

8 (the treaty) as a mere agreement for the sale of land made between a private vendor and a private purchaser."

"In my opinion," Mr. Justice Davey said, "their regular rights of hunting and fishing over their ancient hunting grounds, arising under the agreements by which they collectively sold their ancient lands, are Indian affairs over which Parliament has exclusive legislative authority, and only Parliament can derogate from those rights."

As a result, he said, the right of two Indians to hunt the lands in question are preserved by the Indian Act and remain unimpaired by the Game Act and they were therefore rightfully in possession of the deer carcasses.

Traffic Trial Decision Jan. 11

GANGES—A 35-year-old Vancouver man will learn Jan. 11 whether he will face higher court trial on a charge of criminal negligence.

Magistrate D. G. Ashby announced Tuesday in magistrate's court in the Legion Hall he will announce on that day whether Harold Francis Jones will be committed for higher court trial.

Jones was charged following the death of Victor Shaker, 68, in a Salt Spring Island road collision. Mr. Shaker's wife Olivia, 65, and Jones were so severely injured they were not discharged from hospital until last month.

The magistrate's announcement followed a three-hour preliminary hearing. Counsel was George McMillan of Victoria for the Crown and Paul Delaney of Vancouver for the defence.

Sewage, Recreation

First Steps Taken To Alberni Union

PORT ALBERNI — The first formal signs of amalgamation appeared Monday night when the city councils of Alberni and Port Alberni gave first readings to a pair of bylaws.

One sets up a nine-member joint parks and recreation commission. It will include one member each from each council and the school board for one year, two two-year members from Port Alberni and one from Alberni, and two one-year members from Port and one from Alberni.

The other bylaw ratifies joint use of a sewage disposal system planned a number of years ago when Alberni inaugurated its sanitary sewer program.

LAGOON COST

Capital cost of the lagoon, built by Port Alberni on land leased for 21 years by Alberni from MacMillan and Bloedel (Alberni) Ltd., are to be divided on the basis of Alberni assuming eight-eighths of the total over a 14-year period.

The capital costs of a pumping station and mains and the monthly cost of maintenance are to be divided on the same ratio. One of the terms of amalgamation provides for continuation of the payment of Alberni's sewer debt on the present basis.

WORKS YARD

The bylaws were not the only step taken toward co-operation between the Twin Cities, which become the city of Port Alberni Oct. 31, 1967.

In Port Alberni council, AM Howard McLean suggested that a proposal to employ an architect for the joint works yard be placed on the agenda for the next meeting of the two councils.

Discussion has already begun on the proposal that Alberni use for storage part of the area on which the buildings are to be erected.

MORE SIDEWALKS

Ald. McLean also reported the 1964 works program added 2.29 miles of six-foot sidewalk in Port Alberni.

Also carried out under local improvement were street widening projects involving the laying of 19,249 square yards of asphalt paving. Street paving of centre sections 22 feet wide accounted for another 29,121 square yards and widening not under local improvement for 4,700 square yards.

Ald. McLean said the city now has 29.7 miles of paved streets, 13.8 miles of gravel streets and 43 miles of sewer lines.

POLICE RADAR

Council deadlocked on the question of buying police radar equipment at a cost of $600 and left the matter to the 1965 council.

Aldermen received a letter from Ontario resident Everett Kirkman expressing his thanks for receiving a "welcome to Port Alberni" card instead of a parking ticket when he lingered on city hall grounds to admire the flowers during a summer visit.

In Alberni, council accepted with thanks an offer of Indian artifacts and other items for a museum which does not exist.

The woman donor offered copper crab cooker, cowbells and a cabbage cutter among other items. They will be stored in the post office basement pending acquisition of a museum building.

Alberni aldermen also adopted a committee recommendation that all existing 100-watt street lamps be replaced with 200-watt fluorescent lights. The installation will not involve any capital expenditure for the city.

Also adopted was a plan to replace eight 300-watt incandescent lamps on Johnson between Leslie Avenue and Cherry Creek Road with 19 200-watt fluorescent fixtures.

Nanaimo Trustees Sworn In

NANAIMO — Oaths of office will be administered to five Nanaimo district school trustees during a ceremony in the Tally-Ho motor hotel Jan. 5.

Taking the oaths will be J. Wally Manion, re-elected at a rural trustees' meeting last month, Gordon MacGillivray, Richard Winkelman, Robert Anson and Douglas Webber.

All except Mr. Manion are new to the board. Mr. Winkelman and Mr. MacGillivray are rural trustees, the others represent the city.

A new school board chairman will be chosen at the meeting to take over from rural trustee Joseph Shook. Completing two-year terms are trustees Dr. Roy MacMillan, W. A. Lerch, Richard Baugh-Allen and Mr. Shook.

Chamber Delighted

Port Alberni Made Port of Registry

PORT ALBERNI—Ottawa has agreed that Port Alberni will become a port of registry of the Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce learned at its regular weekly meeting Tuesday.

Typical reaction was voiced by re-elected Chamber president Mrs. Edna Southern, who said: "I'm overjoyed . . . It is a fine climax to the Chamber's year."

William Beckingham, chairman of the Chamber industrial promotion committee, said he had received a letter from deputy transport minister J. R.

'LOGICAL HOME'

Mr. Baldwin said the revenue, customs and excise department indicated it had no objection to the proposal.

"Port Alberni is the centre of the West Coast fishing fleet is the logical home port for the fleet," said Mr. Beckingham. "It would be a convenience for the fishermen to have this as a port of registration."

Mrs. Southern, the first woman to head the Chamber here, was elected a year ago as president of the Port Alberni Chamber and continued after its amalgamation with the Alberni Board of Trade as head of the Alberni Valley Chamber.

NEW EXECUTIVE

Others on the executive, which will be installed at a dinner meeting in January:

Felix Nicholson, first vice-president; Al Parker, second vice-president; George Paulson, treasurer, and directors Douglas Dryden, William Russell, Jack Jowsey, Jack Webber, Jack Hiltz, Charles Blair and Harry Grid.

Cars lined up for repairs in Nanaimo vocational training school shop

Citizens Can Help Train Mechanics

By LYNN WALLER

NANAIMO—Taxpayers have a chance at the vocational training school here to take an active part in the training of car mechanics.

In this "give and take" process, individuals can have their cars repaired for a nominal shop charge and the students have an opportunity to obtain practical experience in their training program.

Richard Howell, instructor for the 3½-month course in pre-apprentice mechanics, says the work is not guaranteed but is done under supervision and with first-quality, government-supplied equipment.

After two daily hours of theory in a classroom, the students move to the school's large shop where they work on cars brought in for repairs. All vehicles attached to the school are serviced there although students only work on private cars which need repairs, and the waiting list is long.

Mr. Howell explained customers must be able to leave their cars at the school for longer than they would at a garage—and must make their own arrangements for parts. A pickup truck goes out from the school each day for parts ordered by customers from local supply firms.

The school can handle any make of car and the minimum charges go to the school trust fund. Last year money from this fund bought a piano for the cafeteria.

When the students complete the pre-apprentice course they start a four-year mechanics apprenticeship. During this time they must return to the school each year for a month-long refresher course before writing an inter-provincial qualification exam.

Water Rationing Ahead For Prairie Farmlands

By ALLEN RACKMANN

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Water, the life of southern Alberta's expanding $170,000,000 agriculture industry, one day may restrict its growth.

Experts look to the day when water will be rationed to irrigation farmers as carefully as gasoline is metered into the family automobile.

J. H. Graham, manager of the St. Mary and Milk Rivers Development Association (SARM), says: "We'll run out of water long before we run out of land" for irrigation.

'UNDER DITCH'

More than 750,000 acres are "under the ditch" and the acreage increases at a rate of five to 10 per cent a year. Experts plan to extend irrigation to 200,000 acres of dry land.

Sugar beets, vegetables, cereal crops and ranching flourish on land that, before irrigation, forced many pioneers into heartbreak.

GIANT WEB

The water, from six rivers on the eastern slopes of the Canadian Rockies, flows into a giant web of irrigation ditches 170 miles eastward to Medicine Hat, transforming the dusty soil into one of the richest agricultural areas in Canada.

More than 7,500 farmers share in the wealth generated by the water and raise 20 per cent of Alberta's gross agricultural product on four per cent of the arable land.

TAP LAST SOURCE

The Waterton Dam, on the Waterton River in southwestern Alberta, will be tapping the last source of water when it is completed. When it and other river systems are completely harnessed, water will be a premium commodity for production of sugar beets and vegetables which couldn't be grown without irrigation.

How important is water? It takes 30,000 gallons to grow a bushel of wheat and 500,000 gallons to raise a ton of hay.

The average householder uses 45,000 gallons of water a year, equivalent to the requirements for 1½ bushels of wheat.

RATES VARY

Farmers spend up to $100 an acre to prepare their land for irrigation. Water is sold to them at varying rates. The SARM, for example, charges $3 an acre to deliver the water to fields of 3,000 farmers.

Wally Fox, Prairie Farm Rehabilitation official at Lethbridge, says the day is coming when farmers will be paying a lot more for their water and buying it on an acre-foot basis. Already farmers are using new techniques and new irrigation equipment to make better use of the water. The old-fashioned flood irrigation is giving way to controlled border dikes and sprinkler systems.

PIPE ROTATES

Two new pieces of equipment have appeared during the last year. One is a self-propelled system that eliminates the back-breaking work of loading and unloading pipe associated with the conventional system that has the pipe strung along the ground. Not only does it cut moving time in half but makes for more even distribution of the water.

Another system has the water source in the middle of the field with pipe connected to a pivot. Through a series of plungers,

Check Promised

OTTAWA (CP)—B.C. Air Lines Ltd. has been authorized to serve Banks Island, Trutchland and Hartley Bay along its present Prince Rupert - Ocean Falls route in British Columbia, the air transport board announced Tuesday.

The board said the company's application to also serve Porcher Island was denied.

NO LET-DOWN

It said it will review the extended operation to ensure service does not deteriorate along the regular route.

"If it becomes apparent that service to the additional points is resulting in a deterioration of service on the direct route to the board may find it necessary to reconsider its decision."

At the same time the board rejected a bid by the company to have kept on file with the board an application for the commercial service connecting Prince Rupert, Port Simpson, Alice Arm and Stewart in the event Pacific Western Airlines ever gives up the route.

REJECTED

In another decision, the board rejected applications by Trans-Canada Air Carriers Limited to operate a charter service between Canadian points from a base at Stewart, B.C., and to operate a commercial service from Terrace, B.C., to serve Greenville, Kincolville, Alice Arm, Stewart and Anuk River.

driven by water, the pipe rotates to water the field evenly without wastage.

The systems cost about $20,000 each.

Land is also being levelled to make more of it available for irrigation and make better use of the water. Farmers strip off the top soil and then spread it over the levelled ground—at a cost of $15 to $100 an acre.

Another advance that saves money for some farmers, although it has no effect on water consumption, is the use of natural gas for pumping water across the fields. Farmers have found pumping costs cut by half with the use of the cheap natural gas.

While the limitations of water availability will eventually be felt on expansion of irrigation, farmers in the area haven't tapped the full potential of their land.

Dr. I. L. Nonnecke of the Lethbridge Research Station says: "We haven't even scratched the surface of the area's potential."

Many vegetable crops, for example, could be raised on a wider scale to add to the diversification of the area.

Amateur Artists Receive Expert Help

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—The work of high school artists gets professional display at an unusual Toronto art gallery.

Showcase for the High-Art Foundation, the gallery is a non-profit experiment aimed at encouraging young artists and giving them practical help.

The work of the foundation has been centered in Toronto since its founding 20 months ago, but it has a federal charter and the hope is that it will eventually spread across Canada.

Ten paintings by its young proteges were shown in an international exhibit in Tokyo in October. And the foundation has awarded its first two scholarships—one to a painter and one to a sculptor—and has made other awards to exhibitors.

WOMAN IS FOUNDER

Founder of the High-Art Foundation is Mrs. Hartley Hunter of Toronto, art collector, art authenticator and former head of the conservation department of the National Gallery in Ottawa.

Mrs. Hunter says it was a small thing that prompted her to start the foundation.

"It was something I read—that Toronto was the lowest contributor to the arts per capita in the Americas."

"There is a need for encouragement in the fine arts, and particularly in sculpture, which I have always felt was a forgotten art."

TALENT LOST

She says too much young talent was being lost for lack of opportunity to develop, partly because of a lack of scholarships at the high school graduating level.

The first two foundation scholarships are valued at about $500. They cover school fees plus such things as lunches, carfare, locker fees and materials.

Mrs. Hunter says the scholarships are based on what a specific student needs, and therefore may vary from case to case.

STUDY ABROAD

If a student does well his scholarship will be extended, even to cover study abroad, she says.

The first two students are attending the Ontario College of Art here, but "after this year they may study anywhere in the world and we will still pay the whole shot."

Most of the foundation's funds to date have come from Mrs. Hunter personally—she wanted to be sure the idea would work before asking others to contribute—but now she says contributions will be gratefully accepted from industry or private donors. Because of the foundation's federal charter, they are tax-exempt.

PICKED BY STUDENTS

Mrs. Hunter says the foundation incorporates several novel ideas. For one thing, the students themselves choose the paintings to be exhibited. The gallery has seven exhibitions of work from Grade 12 and 13 students representing all Toronto city schools.

"Then students volunteered to man the gallery so they would hear unbiased comment, and it has taught them." During the first 18 months 15,000 visitors signed the gallery guest book.

TRAVEL CANADA

Mrs. Hunter and other foundation representatives intend to visit other parts of Canada to talk about the work it is doing. And some award-winning paintings and sculptures are being kept for eventual showing to students and teachers around the country.

"In time, I think, each province will have to have its own gallery to show in."

Beatle Rhythm Fills Tent

Guitars on Cyprus

Guards Keep Peace, Beat

By ALAN WALKER

NICOSIA (CP)—Rifles, mess kits, guitars, pistols... wait a minute! Guitars? Hardly routine gear for war.

It's true, though. Enough instruments to equip a rock 'n' roll group from more than 5,000 miles from Canada to Cyprus as official equipment for the Canadian Guards.

GOOD FOR MORALE

Guardsman Gene Scott, 19, of Hamilton smacked out a steady beat on his full set of drums at a recent platoon party deep in the Kyrenia hills in the midst of hostile Greek and Turkish-Cypriot positions.

Guardsmen and officers danced the Twist as Beatle music crashed inside a khaki tent over dusty gravel.

In front of Scott four soldiers plucked electric guitars.

LEADS GROUP

Pte. John Mansfield, 27, of Westfield, N.S., is the leader of the Fireflies' group. It started in Germany a year or so ago when the Guards were stationed there with the NATO contingent.

All the musicians do full duty with the United Nations peace-keeping force here so they don't get time to practise. "These are our practices," Pte. Mansfield said with a grin.

tar, Gdsm. Ron Surette, 21, of Moncton, N.B., backs Jarvis up with another guitar. Gdsm. Al Morton, 26, of Yarmouth, N.S., plays bass guitar.

"Gene's the odd man out, so to speak," Pte. Mansfield said, pointing to the drummer.

MEMORIZE TUNES

"All the rest of us come from down east, but we like him anyway."

None of them reads music and they memorize tunes off records. They love the Beatles and play and sing a lot of their songs.

The men clamored for more music to back up a beer-drinking contest so the five musicians returned to their amplifiers. They played and sang far into the night.

HAS SONG WRITERS

The battalion boasts two song writers too. Guardsmen Tony White, 21, of London, Ont., and Philip Cheverie, 24, of Souris, P.E.I., plan to teach some of their music to the Fireflies.

"We can't write the music down," Gdsm. Cheverie said, "but we've got the words all figured out and I have a sort of a tune in my head."

'BESIDES...'

Keeping peace can be boring for soldiers used to battle situations so the battalion officers encourage get-togethers where the men can unwind. A platoon from No. 2 Company was due to change position so its commander, Cpl. Bob Watson, 27, of Hespler, Ont., hastily organized a party. "It's as good an excuse as any," he said. And then added the puzzling remark: "Besides, it's Wednesday night."

CHICAGO (AP)—Itchy?

Stop bathing, says a University of Illinois skin doctor.

The reason, he says, is that too much soap and water wash away the skin's protective oils.

Americans have "the crazy notion that a daily bath is necessary for good health," said Dr. Frederick J. Szymanski, an associate professor of dermatology.

He said pruritis hiemalis—(winter itch)—is aggravated by soap and water. The condition can keep a person scratching through May. In severe cases it covers the body, he said, causing acyl skin and interfering with sleep.

"One could drink olive oil by the gallon each day without affecting the lubricating quality of the skin oil that has been washed away," Dr. Szymanski said.

He conceded he was fighting a losing battle.

"Long ago I gave up preaching for less bathing," he said.

"This is an unpopular suggestion and there is no use trying to change habits of our patients."

If you must bathe, use a superfatted soap which doesn't dry the skin as much. Other aids include skin lotion and a humidifier to keep indoor air moist.

Trusteeship Sought For Key Buildings

PORT ALBERNI—The tri-service organization of this district has applied for trusteeship of the federal defence department buildings here to keep them open after the end of the Canadian Scottish D Company.

The application was announced at a recent farewell banquet held by the militia group, which also expressed determination to do all possible to maintain the army cadet corps. One reason for the trusteeship would be continued use of some of the buildings for the Alberni district fall fair.

Parkway Preview Planned

LADY SMITH—Vancouver planner John Maitland-Carter has advised the village council that plans for development of the new Parkway area will be ready early in 1965.

Village clerk Robert Wood said Tuesday the planner also advised council Monday night he will discuss the sketch plans with council before final drawing.

ings are made. The municipality will develop the 80-acre area between the Davis Road subdivision and the village. Lady Smith bought the area for $22,000 in 1963.

PORT ALBERNI—The Alberni district school board has proposed talks with the Twin Cities' councils and the joint recreation commission on a plan to have the cities control school grounds maintenance. A similar scheme, aimed at ending duplication of equipment and services, operates in Kelowna.

CHEMUNUS—Residents of Chemunus have been asked to place gifts under the large Christmas tree in the lobby of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. The gifts will be delivered Christmas Eve by the bank staff and service organizations to needy families in this area.

PORT ALBERNI—Mass will be celebrated at 9 a.m. today in Holy Family Church for Mrs. Rose Ann Parr, 83, of 505 Angus, who died at her home Sunday. A native of Ireland, she and her husband Fred came here 16 years ago.

COURTENAY—Stanley Frank, who had pleaded guilty earlier to a charge of possession of stolen goods, was sentenced in magistrate's court Tuesday to three months in jail. The charge involved a $200 outdoor motor owned by the federal fisheries department.

PORT ALBERNI—Mrs. Anne Damery, who helped form the local branch of the Old Age Pensioners' Organization in 1951, will head the group in 1965. Elected to office with Mrs. Damery were Russell West, first vice-president; Mrs. West, second vice-president; Mrs. Kathleen Pickles, secretary, and William Ginniver, treasurer.

ALBERNI—Art Thompson has been re-elected president of the Alberni Valley's 4-H Senior Council at the annual meeting. Others elected were Mrs. Vivian Thompson, treasurer; Mrs. Doris Stephens, secretary, and Mrs. Yvonne Reis, Miss Shirley McLean, Frank Reis, Ken Stephens, Symen Groenewald and Bob Brown.

CHEMUNUS—R. J. Duncan was installed as president of the Legion branch 225 at a week-end ceremony. Other officers are Art Pender, first vice-president; Con Newfeld, second vice-president; Rev. J. G. Matthews, padre; E. E. (Zip) Jackson, sergeant-at-arms, and directors C. Francouer, H. Deebie, E. G. English and Jack Pinson. President Mrs. Edward Jobs was unable to attend as women's auxiliary officers were installed. They include Mrs. E. Ross, first vice-president; Mrs. F. E. Martin, second vice-president; Mrs. Barry Frost, secretary; Mrs. Victor Petras, treasurer, and directors Mrs. H. Nicholls, Mrs. N. Allen, Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. R. Porter, Mrs. A. Pender and Mrs. C. Simonds.

LAKE COWICHAN—Pupils of Stanley Gordon Elementary School will present a Christmas pageant entitled The Nativity Scene during the regular meeting of the Lake Cowichan PTA in the school's activity room Friday. Business will be confined to a few announcements, receipt of memberships and distribution of PTA calendars.

CHEMUNUS—The annual Christmas corage tag day at the weekend raised $186 for the Chemunus General Hospital women's auxiliary. Mrs. Ben Hickling was in charge of tagging and other officials were Mrs. Frank Eastwood and Mrs. L. Huntley.

ALBERNI—Tickets for the annual banquet of the Alberni District Fish and Game Club should be lined up before Dec. 31, officials said Tuesday. Information may be obtained by phoning 4-1878. The banquet will be held Feb. 27 in Cherry Creek hall and the fare will include crab meat and cougar meat. Len Gibson heads the banquet committee.

LADYSMITH—John Corrius of Lantzville has been fined $150 in magistrate's court and given a four-month driving licence suspension after pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

CHEMUNUS—A fine of $50 has been handed in Ladysmith resident Barry McMahon in magistrate's court after he pleaded guilty to a charge of consuming liquor in public.

cue from lonely Janette Le-land in the Queen Charlotte Islands by the coastal freighter Imperial Nanaimo was the greatest Christmas gift he could receive.

Mr. McKimmel and his wife Ruby were marooned when their boat Toules lost its anchor and started to break up in a storm during a trip to Smith's Inlet from Alert Bay.

They reached Janette Island in a small skiff, having food and their sleeping bags. But the sleeping bags and extra clothing were burned when they left them too close to a fire to dry.

The McKimmels lit signal fires, built a lean-to and kept a 24-hour watch for passing boats.

The logger said they saw "many boats go by but we couldn't attract their attention."

"One saw us signalling SOS and turned back, but after 20 minutes it went on its way. I'm sure they saw our signals."

The crew of the Imperial Nanaimo sighted smoke from a signal fire, then saw a white board Mr. McKimmel was waving.

They gave the McKimmels "all the food we wanted and dry clothing" before taking them back to Alert Bay.

Goal in Alberni:

Entertainment Ecumenically

PORT ALBERNI—The worldwide ecumenical movement is reflected in the organization of a small group of young people in the Alberni—the Christian Youth Association of the Alberni.

One of the members said the new organization's aim is "to provide entertainment for the youth of the valley in a wholesome and Christian way, mixing those of different denominations in the spirit of ecumenism."

FIRST EVENT

The first social event will be a party Dec. 28, during which the members of a permanent council will be named. The council will include one member per parish for each denomination.

Christian young people aged from 14 to 24 have been invited to the social event in Smith Memorial School gymnasium.

SUPPER FIRST

There will be no charge and the program includes a smorgasbord supper at 7 p.m., followed by a hootenanny and dancing. Further information may be obtained by phoning Gemma Watkin, 3-5628; Roberta Minor, 3-5658; Yvonne Romanuk, 4-0889, or Ray Tank, 3-7636, between 4:30 and 6:30 p.m. any day of the week.

Camera Club Chooses Organizers and Judge

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—Five people have been named to the organizing committee for the show night in March planned by the Mount and Valley Camera Club.

Named as a club meeting in the science block of Shawnigan Lake School (Lonsdale's) were L. A. Batchelor, Ken Bowden, Jim Lodge, E. G. Gibson and Mrs. W. J. Cotford.

JUDGE CHANGED

Tim Moore was appointed to the judging committee to succeed Mr. Bowden. The judges are changed every three months.

Winners of the December slide competition were Mr. Bowden first and tied for second with Dr. C. P. Porter. Mr. Porter won third place and Mr. Gibson received honorable mention.

Club members learned the IBC Dockyard Camera Club in Victoria has arranged for night shots of illuminated ships Dec. 29. Those wishing to make the trip should notify Mrs. Cotford before Dec. 20.

FOUR FILMS

Ray Dougan of Shawnigan Lake showed films of the rescue of local residents during Koksilah and Cowichan river floods, a Shawnigan district storm last February, the successful rescue of a cow from a well at Fairbridge and a plowing match.

School Costs

'Extravagances' Put in Writing

PORT ALBERNI—Cases have occurred where it cost more to operate a district elementary school library than to run the public libraries in the same area in B.C., finance chairman Ald. Jack Perry told city council Monday night.

He was reporting on a recent submission to Education Minister Peterson on "extravagances" in school expenditures, made by a Vancouver Island Municipal Association committee.

He said the school library was open only during school hours for the sole benefit of pupils in Grades 1 to 7 while the public libraries were open for more hours and served the entire people.

Another point was that dues and fees paid to the school trustees' association were in some instances five times those paid by associated municipalities to the UBCM. Other items:

● Some school districts employ full-time engineers as maintenance supervisors.

● Summer school tuition fees are paid by the school districts instead of by the individual teacher.

● Directors and supervisors are supplied for the instruction of practicing teachers.

Ald. Perry said the committee urged earlier submission to councils of school budgets and asked that work sheets accompany budgets.

Malahat Legion Drive Covers Cement Cost

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—The buy-a-block ticket campaign started by the Malahat Legion branch last June has ended with $350, secretary Mrs. Lea Gillard announced Tuesday.

She said the campaign fully covered the cost of purchasing cement blocks for the construction of the proposed new Legion hall here.

Prize winners in the campaign-draw were A. J. Simard, Shawnigan Lake, who won an electric drill donated by Garner's Builders Supplies of Duncan; Mrs. A. Dibb, Shawnigan Lake, electric hand mixer, Eaton's of Duncan, and Harold Gross of Duncan, electric toothbrush.

Phil Johnston of Duncan won the watch, rifle and Legion member William Doyle received a duplicate prize as salesman of the winning ticket.

Victorian Among Injured

COURTENAY—Three men were resting comfortably in St. Joseph's Hospital at last report following a two-car angle collision Monday night near Buckley Bay.

Herbert Reynald White of Victoria, alone in one of the cars, suffered chest injuries and knee lacerations. The other driver, William Vrasel of Fraser Bay on Loughborough Inlet, suffered unatended injuries, and passenger David Johnson has knee injuries and facial cuts.

Bribe Offer Sworn

OTTAWA (CP)—Pierre Lamontagne, 29-year-old Montreal lawyer, swore Tuesday he was subjected to two months of pressure, including a $20,000 bribe, by federal ministerial aides, a Liberal MP and others to agree to the granting of bail in a narcotics case.

The case is that of Lucien Rivard of Montreal, wanted in the United States on a narcotics smuggling charge which states Rivard is linked with a Mafia-controlled international dope ring.

IN PRISON

Rivard was arrested in Montreal June 18, and still is in Boreaux Jail there pending decision on an extradition application by the United States.

Mr. Lamontagne, wan and hollow-eyed, testified he had been told Rivard was a contributor to the Liberal party and his (Rivard's) help might soon be needed in a federal election.

He spent 2½ hours on the witness stand before a judicial inquiry headed by Chief Justice Frederic Dorian of the Quebec Superior Court. The federal cabinet ordered the inquiry into allegations of bribery and coercion against ministerial aides and the handling of these allegations by Justice Minister Favreau.

OFFERED $20,000

Mr. Lamontagne, who is acting for the U.S. government in trying to have Rivard extradited to the U.S., said he had offered a $20,000 bribe by his "close friend," Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to Immigration Minister Rene Tremblay.

He said the bribe offer was made on the evening of July 14 in the Commons office of Mr. Tremblay but that the minister—scheduled to testify later—wasn't present.

He identified Denis as the

Competition Fears Stymied B.C. Bank

By IAN STREET

Fear of competition from a Vancouver-based bank prompted the senate to reject B.C.'s bank application, Premier Bennett said here Tuesday.

He said the real reason behind the defeat of the bank bill by the senate committee had little to do with government participation.

"It appears they are anxious to keep financial control in Canada in the hands of the eastern establishment," the premier said.

NET OBJECTIONS

"(The senate) is opposed to a large bank with headquarters in Vancouver."

Mr. Bennett told a luncheon audience B.C. has met "every single objection" raised by senators during the banking committee hearings.

"We have agreed to drop our original 25 per cent participation to 10 per cent or less; we have agreed not to invest in the bank at all until the Bank Act is revised early next year," he said.

WILL FIGHT

Mr. Bennett said his government does not expect to get approval from Ottawa easily and would fight for the bank as it had done successfully for the Peace and Columbia power projects.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner flew east for Monday's senate committee hearing to make a fruitless last-minute compromise proposal.

Greater Victoria's first storm this winter caught rush-hour traffic in an icy grip Tuesday, causing one serious accident and traffic tie-ups all over the area.

A light fall of snow—three-tenths of an inch—made roads icy and treacherous, even more dangerous than if there had been a heavier snowfall. (See picture Page 17.)

Elsewhere in the Vancouver Island area temperatures plunged as low as eight degrees, at Tofino, but the only report of heavy snow followed a near-blizzard which dumped five inches or more on Salt Spring and other Gulf Islands.

FERRIES STOPPED

High winds all day slowed Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen and Nanaimo-Vancouver ferries and stopped many Gulf Island ferry runs and flights out of Nanaimo. Patricia Bay flights were not affected.

One report said few meals were served on Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen ferries after dishes broke on an early crossing.

Thermometers fell to 10 degrees in Victoria and 12 in Nanaimo, 14 in the Alberni and 15 at Duncan. Only light snow fell in the last three areas, plus Ladysmith and the Comox Valley.

ICY ROADS

Roads were described as "extremely icy" everywhere.

In Greater Victoria, Mrs. Irene Evans of 2715 Maddison and her son Robert were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with minor injuries when Mrs. Evans' car went out of control and dropped down a 20-foot embankment on the Fraser-Canada Highway between Burnside and Tillicum. The car was heavily damaged.

The accident occurred where new paving goes to the roadside, leaving practically no shoulder.

POLICE BUSY

Traffic pileup reports started flooding police department switchboards from 5 p.m. on, as busy intersections became icy and cars stood still with their wheels spinning on the change of the lights.

Wind gusting up to 42 miles an hour hit the city. The official temperature at Gonzales at 8 p.m. had dropped to 16 degrees.

Weatherman William Mackie predicted a high of 32 degrees today with skies mainly clear, apart from the occasional snow shower.

CHAINS ON

At 6 p.m. the fire departments in the area elected to put on chains.

Also at 6 p.m. cars were six deep on the Patricia Bay Highway at Cemetery Hill. At 6:45 p.m. there was a jam-up of trucks on Royal Oak Avenue and the Patricia Bay Highway.

The mess was finally sorted out and Saanich police reported the highway clear but treacherous at 8 p.m.

BOTTLENECK

A typical bottleneck was the three-way traffic light at Hillside and Shelbourne where only one or two cars were able to cross at the change of a light. One motorist said cars were backed up on Shelbourne from Hillside to Haultain.

City, municipal and provincial work crews turned out in force in an effort to salt down well-travelled roads and were to work well into the night.

But the high winds blew away salt and sand in some places almost as soon as it was spread.

Good advice for today by a veteran traffic officer was, "Wherever possible avoid hills."

Four chimney fires, two in the city, one in Saanich and one in View Royal, were extinguished by Greater Victoria fire departments.

Germans Give Tshombe Loan

BONN (Reuters)—Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe Tuesday signed an agreement for a 10,000,000-mark ($2,000,000) loan from the West German government.

Six-Day Snow, More On Way

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—More snow is forecast for this northern city still struggling with the effects of a six-day snowfall last week which left 22 inches on the ground.

The weather was clear and cold Tuesday but the city was still spending record amounts on snow removal.

Old timers said there has been nothing like the present weather since about 1912. Houses have collapsed under the weight of snow.

Elsewhere in the north, temperatures stood at 22 below in the Smithers-Hazelton region, and 28 below in Prince George as cold air covered the entire Prairies.

Hang, close to the Yukon border, had 61-below weather.

Forecasters said coastal areas will likely have more snow after about 34 hours, but the interior should be snow-free for a day or two.

Late Sitzings Scheduled

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate will sit afternoons and evenings today and Thursday in an effort to complete its debate on the red maple leaf flag design.

Senator John Connolly, government leader in the upper house, said he hopes, however, that the debate can be completed by 10 o'clock tonight. (See stories Page 31.)

Canadian Held In Paris Arrests

One of Worst Blizzards Mauls, Buries Prairies

By Canadian Press

One of the worst blizzards in history loosened its grip slightly on Alberta Tuesday night but pounded Saskatchewan with gale-like winds, plummeting temperatures and swirling snow.

At least one person died in the vicious blizzard that combined near-record low temperatures and roaring north winds Monday night and Tuesday in Alberta. Schools closed, travel was virtually abandoned and people were warned to stay indoors.

Police Tuesday found Clem Trimming, 80, dead in a shack in the Red Deer area. His small wood-burning stove had gone out and the temperature in the building was the same as outside—30 below.

HIGH WINDS

Brunt of the storm moved into Saskatchewan Tuesday afternoon where light snow combined with high winds reduced visibility to near zero from Medicine Hat to Moose Jaw and Regina.

At Swift Current, temperatures dropped to near 30 below zero and winds hit peaks of 65 miles an hour.

Manitoba was also expected to get the storm with weather officials predicting lows of near 30 below and high winds.

Husband in Jail

It was sad to see—a home with four girls and not one doll.

"They all want dolls for Christmas," said the mother whose husband is in jail.

"This is the first time he has been in jail, but the longest time he has been at home in the last seven years is for six months."

The boy padded by in a pair of novel-looking slippers.

"I made those slippers with some extra wool I had," the mother said. "I can give them little things like that for Christmas—clothes or something they really need."

To make possible some little extras, a once-in-a-year treat, for those whose day-in, day-out existence is one of "getting by," The Daily Colonist started the 500 Fund eight years ago.

The public is invited to send in contributions. All the money that will be received up to 5 p.m. next Tuesday will be divided 500 ways and a cheque sent out to the 500 most needy in time for Christmas.

Enclosed please find three cheques for $1 each. This money is from our sons' bank accounts and is being donated to your fund instead of their buying each other Christmas gifts this year," said a letter received this week.

The address for donations is: The Colonist 500 Fund, The Daily Colonist, 2811 Douglas. List of donations appears on Page 1.

She Got Royal Brushoff

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Mary Lou Farrell of St. John's, Miss Dominion of Canada for 1961, says she was the most unpopular contestant in the Miss World contest in London in November. Photographers "would pick out so many girls to pose. When I told them I was Miss Canada, they would take me out and put another girl in." She said she was leaving her not because "you didn't want our Queen in your country."

The Pension

Costs Will Rise One Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian prices and labor costs could be expected to rise by about one per cent with the launching of the Canada Pension Plan and its Quebec counterpart, says a government economic report.

The report, last major piece of documentation on the proposal, was outlined to the parliamentary pensions committee Tuesday by R. B. Bryce, deputy finance minister. It goes much deeper than the government white paper published last summer.

These are the major conclusions of the study: Overall economic effects of the pension plan on the relationships between the business, consumer and government sectors of the economy "are on a scale which is modest."

"The beginning of the pension system probably would give rise to modest price increases, 'perhaps of the order of one per cent," but it "should not distort significantly the structure of costs or prices or seriously impair the capability of businesses to generate new funds for replacement or expansion."

Employers, required to contribute to the plan, would see their labor costs go up by "something in the order of one per cent" but "this should not seriously impair the ability of Canadian business to compete with producers outside of Canada."

Mr. Bryce said that in order to avoid minimizing the economic effects, the study was based on the actuary's "high cost" estimates, which are based on assumptions of low immigration and low birth rates. These estimates also assume an annual four per cent increase in average earnings and price increases of 1½ per cent a year until 1975 and two per cent annually thereafter.

Complex Plan Will Hit Market, Business

By STEPHEN VITUNSKI

First of a Series

The Canada Pension Plan has been described as the most complex piece of legislation brought before Parliament since Confederation.

It not only will affect every citizen of this country individually, but on a combined basis as well.

Politically it involves governments at both the provincial and federal level. It will have a marked effect on private pension plans and employer-employee arrangements for payments. It will affect securities markets and personal savings.

Fourth Version

Some weeks ago, Parliament gave second reading to Bill C136, the fourth version of the Canada Pension Plan. Now, it's before a 36-man parliamentary committee composed of 24 MPs and 12 Senators.

Although further revisions may emanate from these hearings, the feeling is that the government has just about run out of concessions and will hold the line pretty close to the status quo.

To ensure portability, the federal government has had to come to terms with the provin-
